The adventures of ...

Little Bear

Color and Learn the Fun Way.

The Adventures of Little Bear

Illustrations By Mark Nelson

Cover Design By Lance Raichert

Published by
Pyramid Publishing
P.O. Box 129
Zenda, Wisconsin
53195

Little Bear was a young Indian boy.

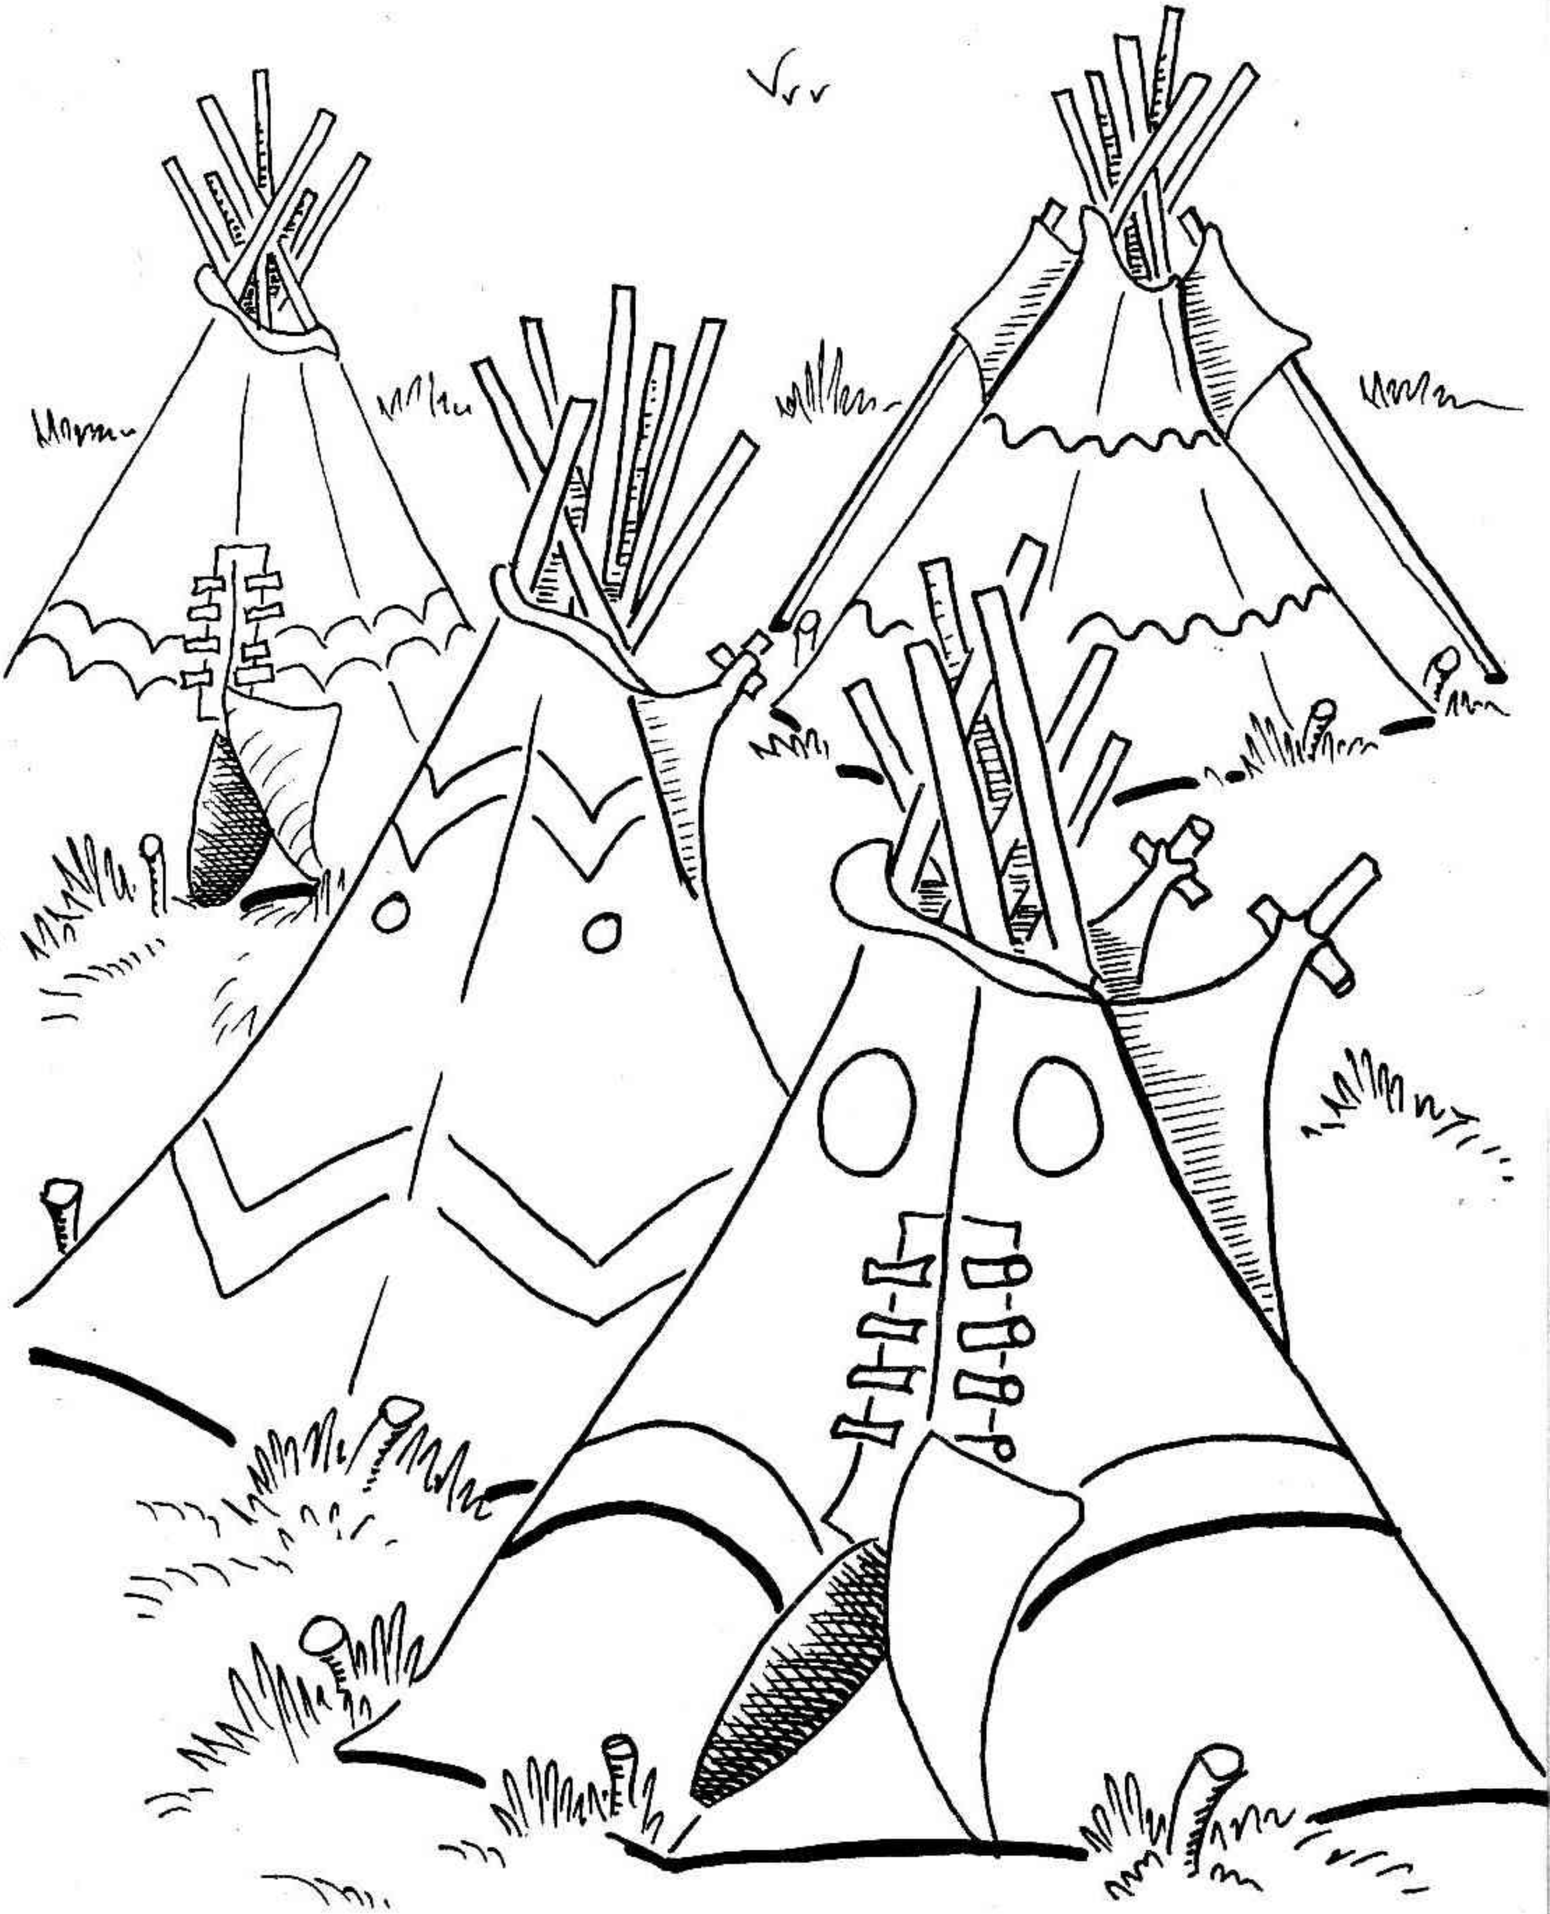

Little Bear's home was called a tepee.

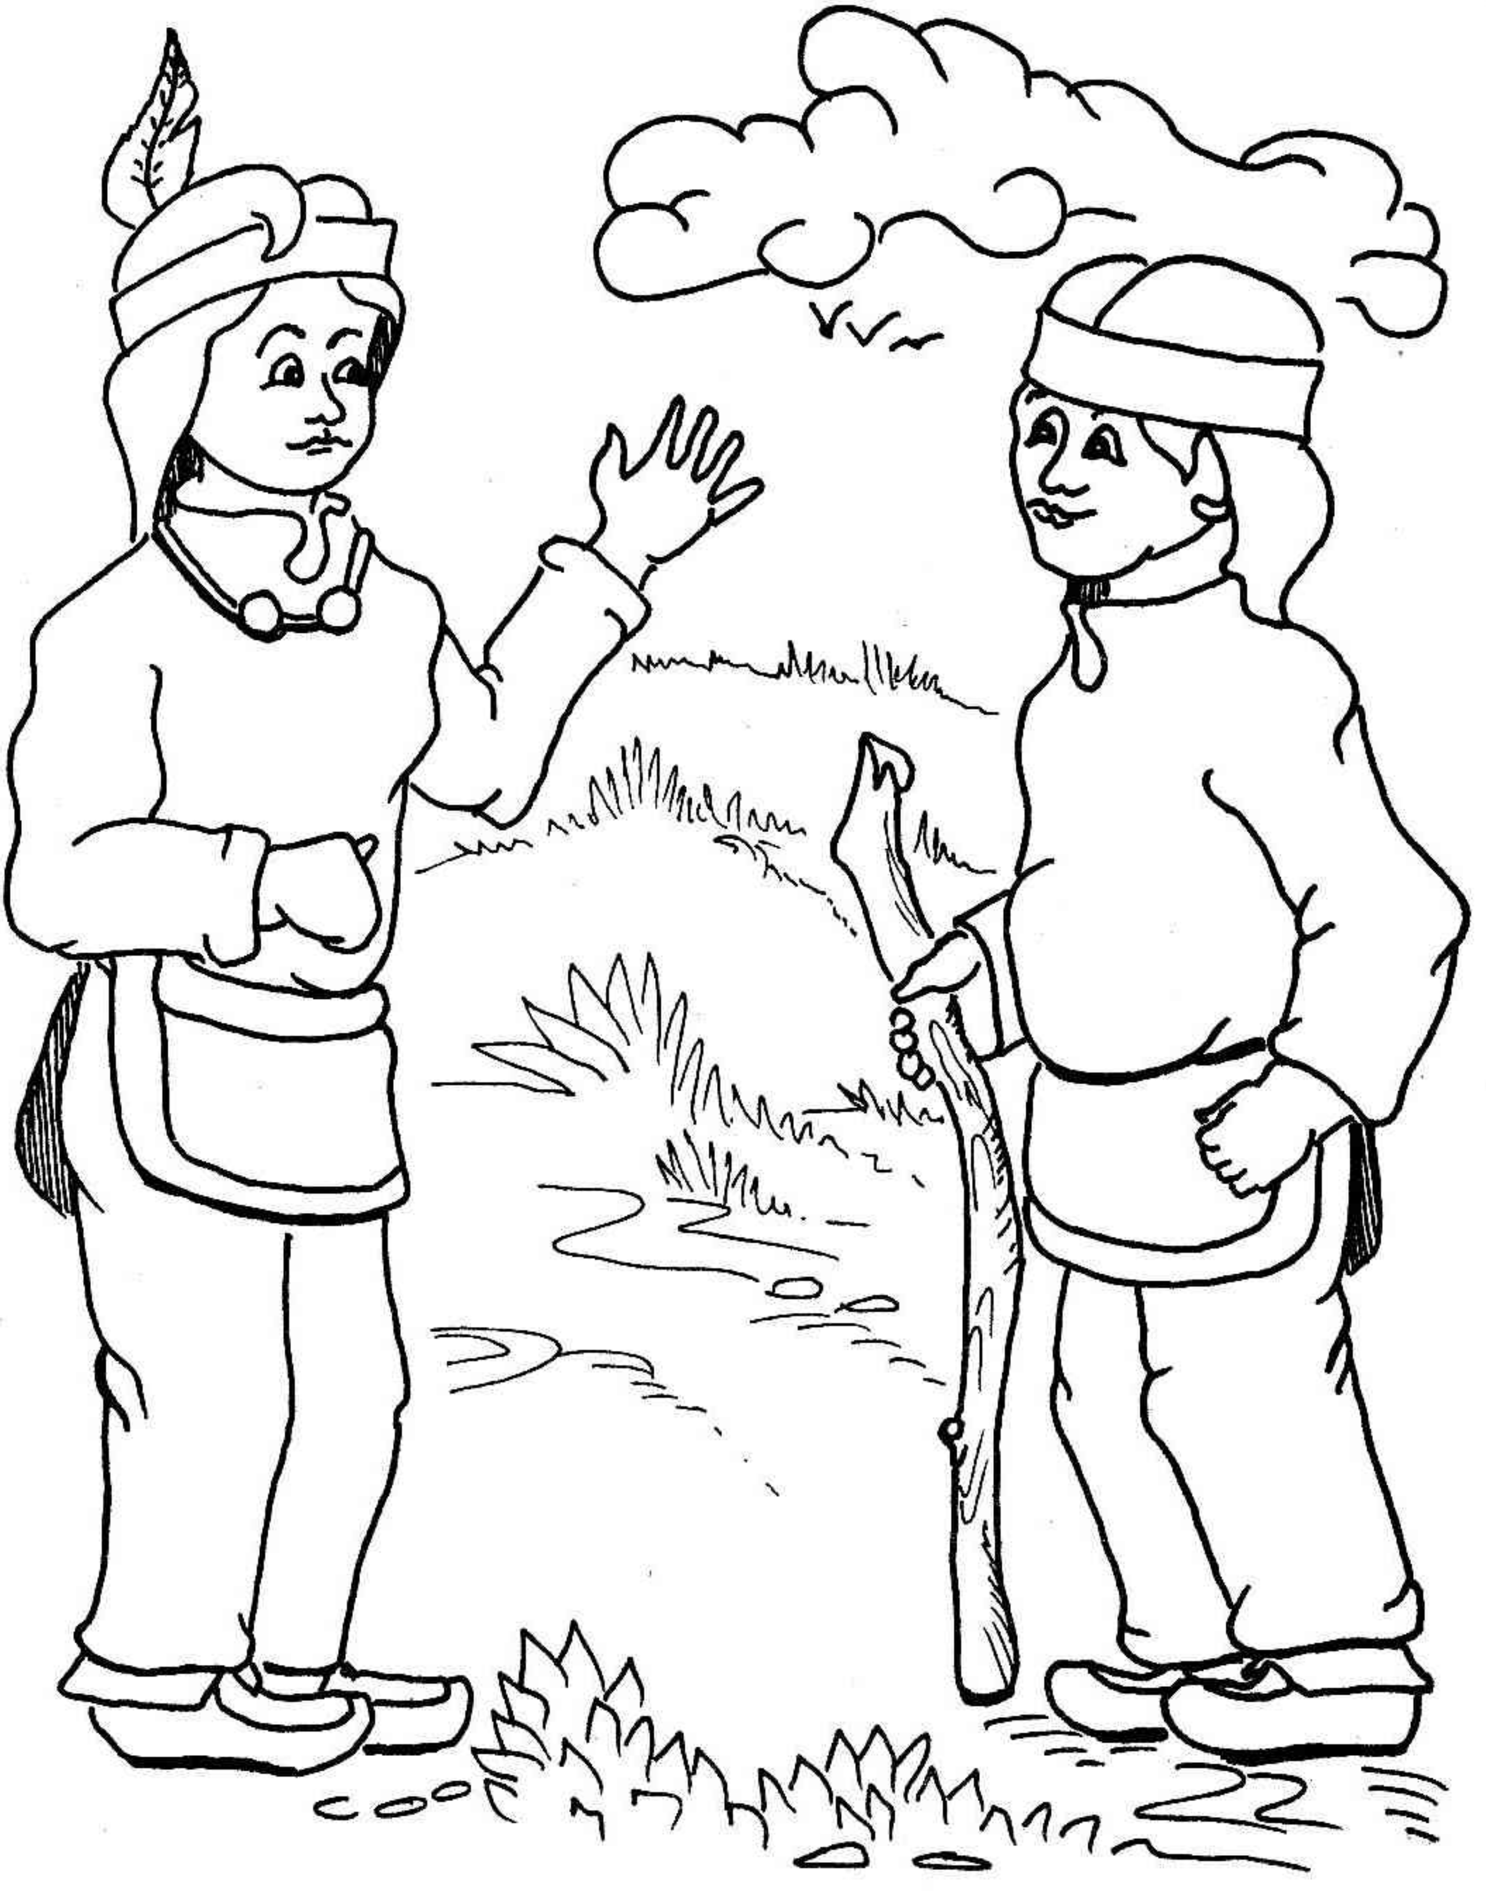

Little Bear had a new baby sister.

His family cooked and slept inside the tepee.

Other families had their own tepees.

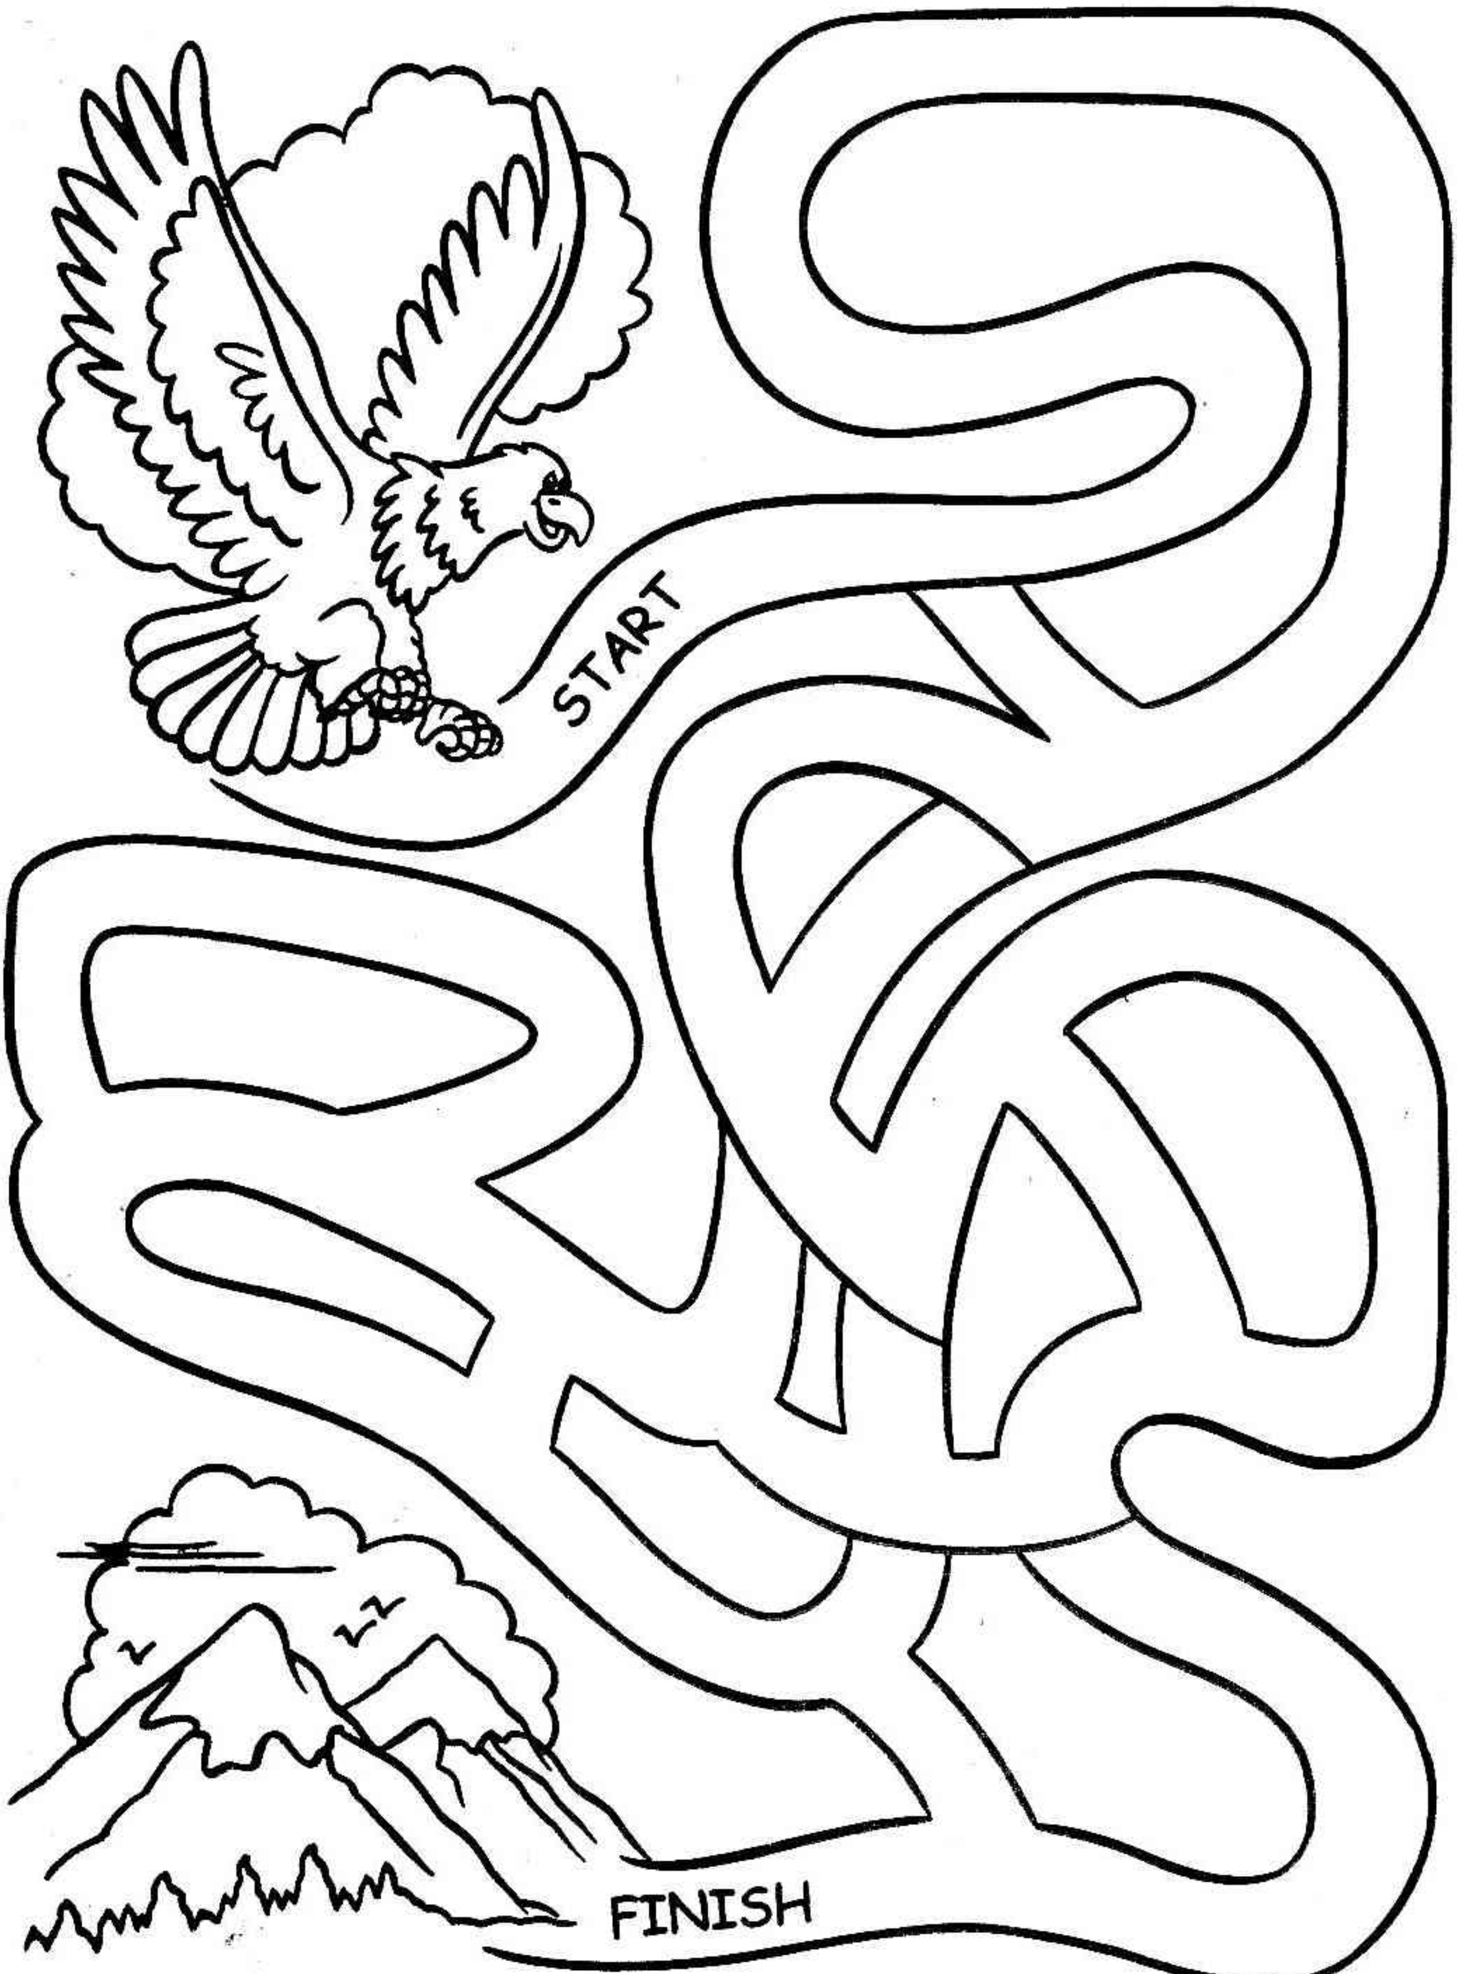

Little Bear's best friend was Gray Cloud.

Often, the boys would wander from the village.

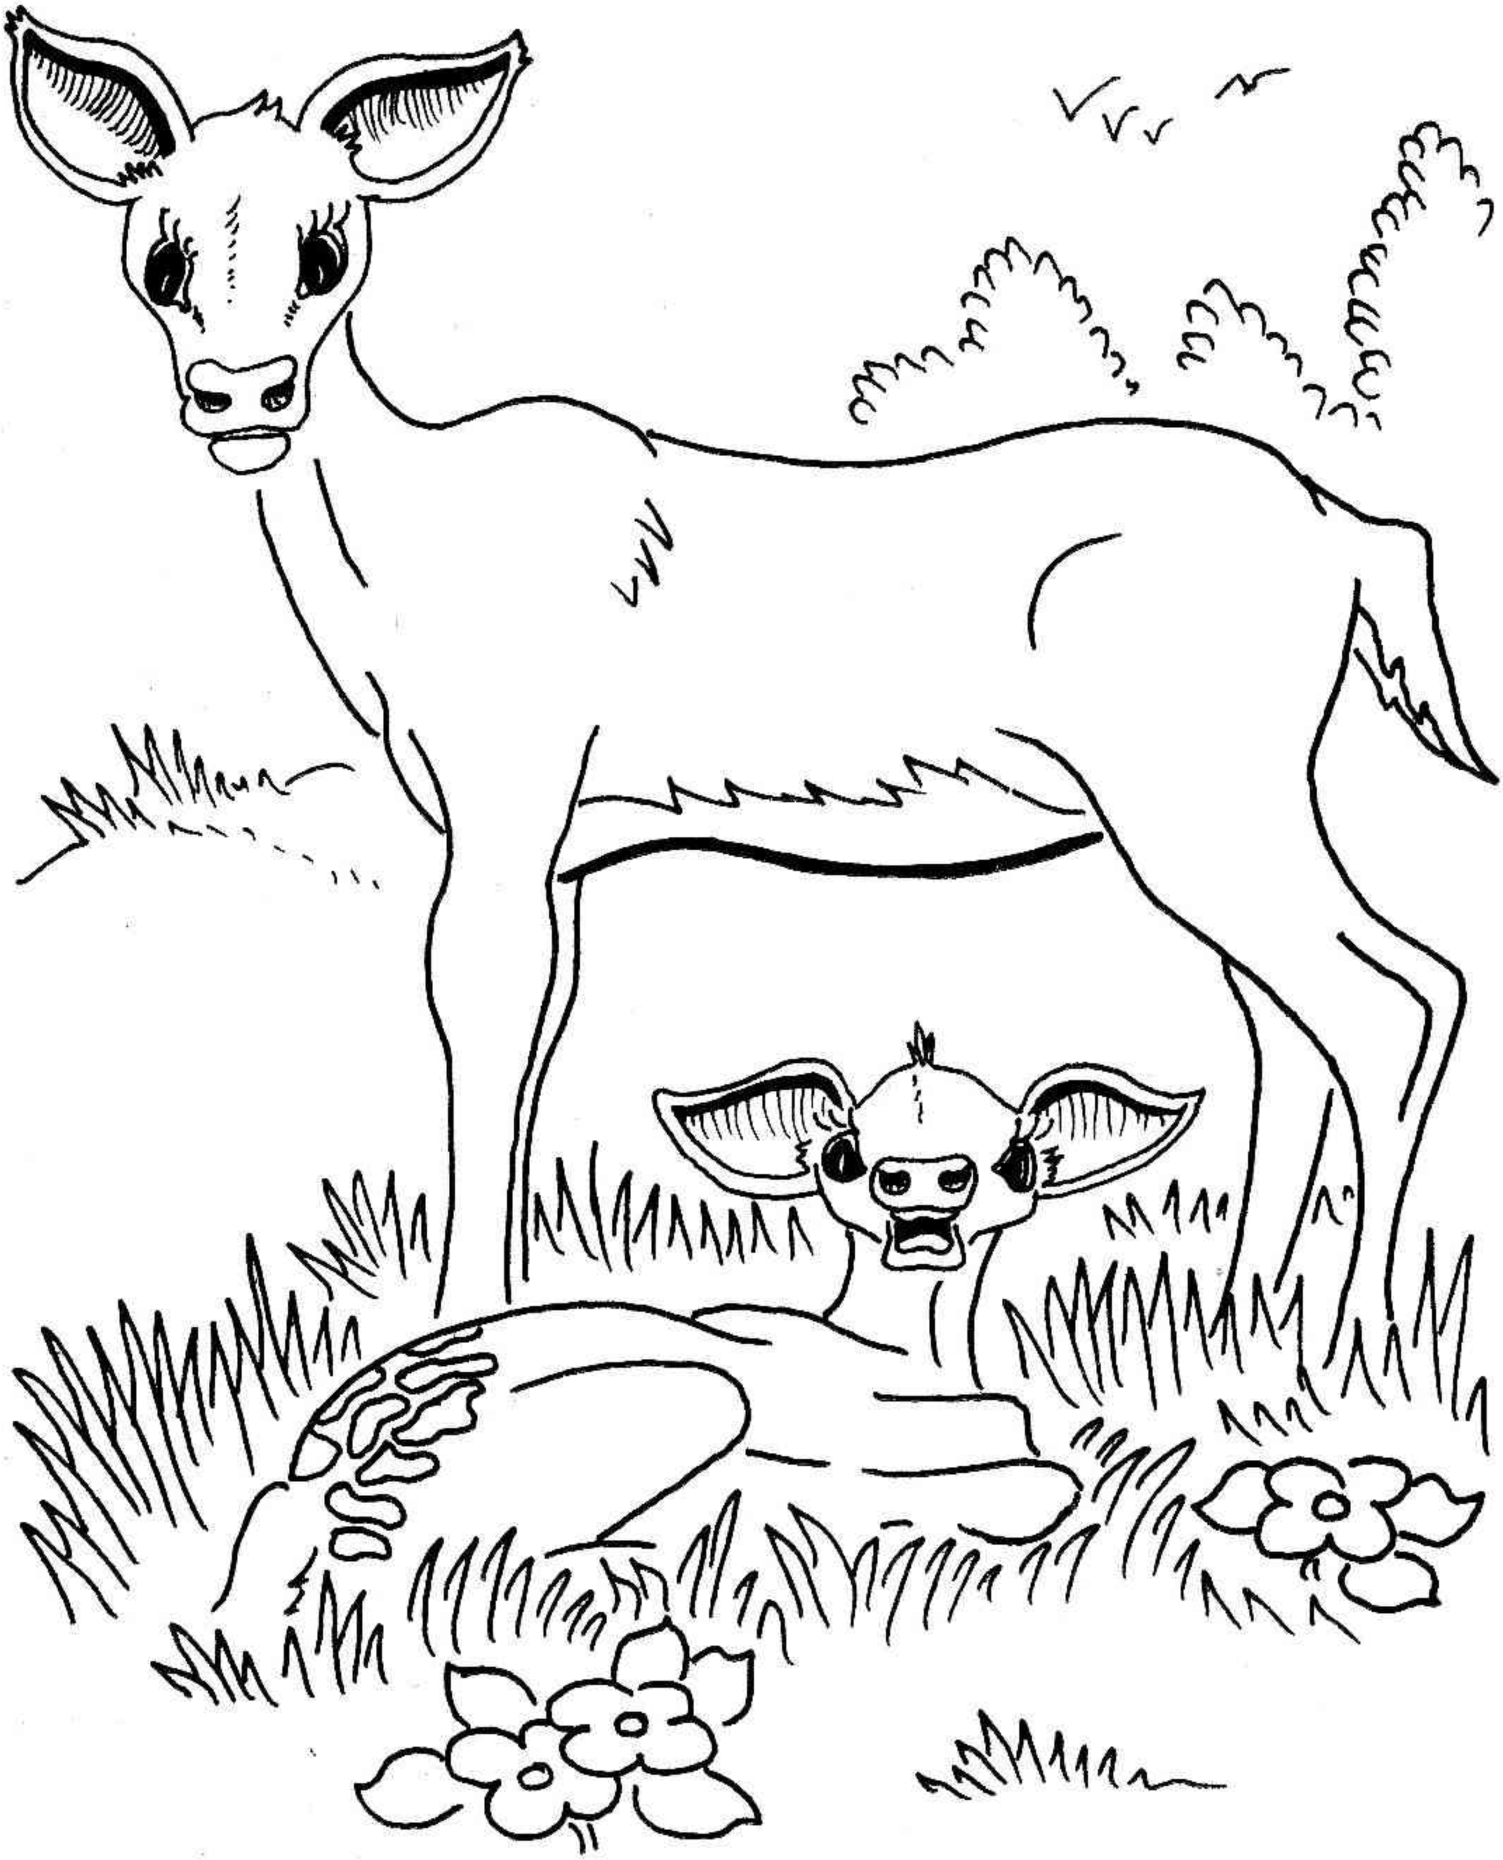

One day, the boys followed an eagle.

Get the eagle to the mountains.

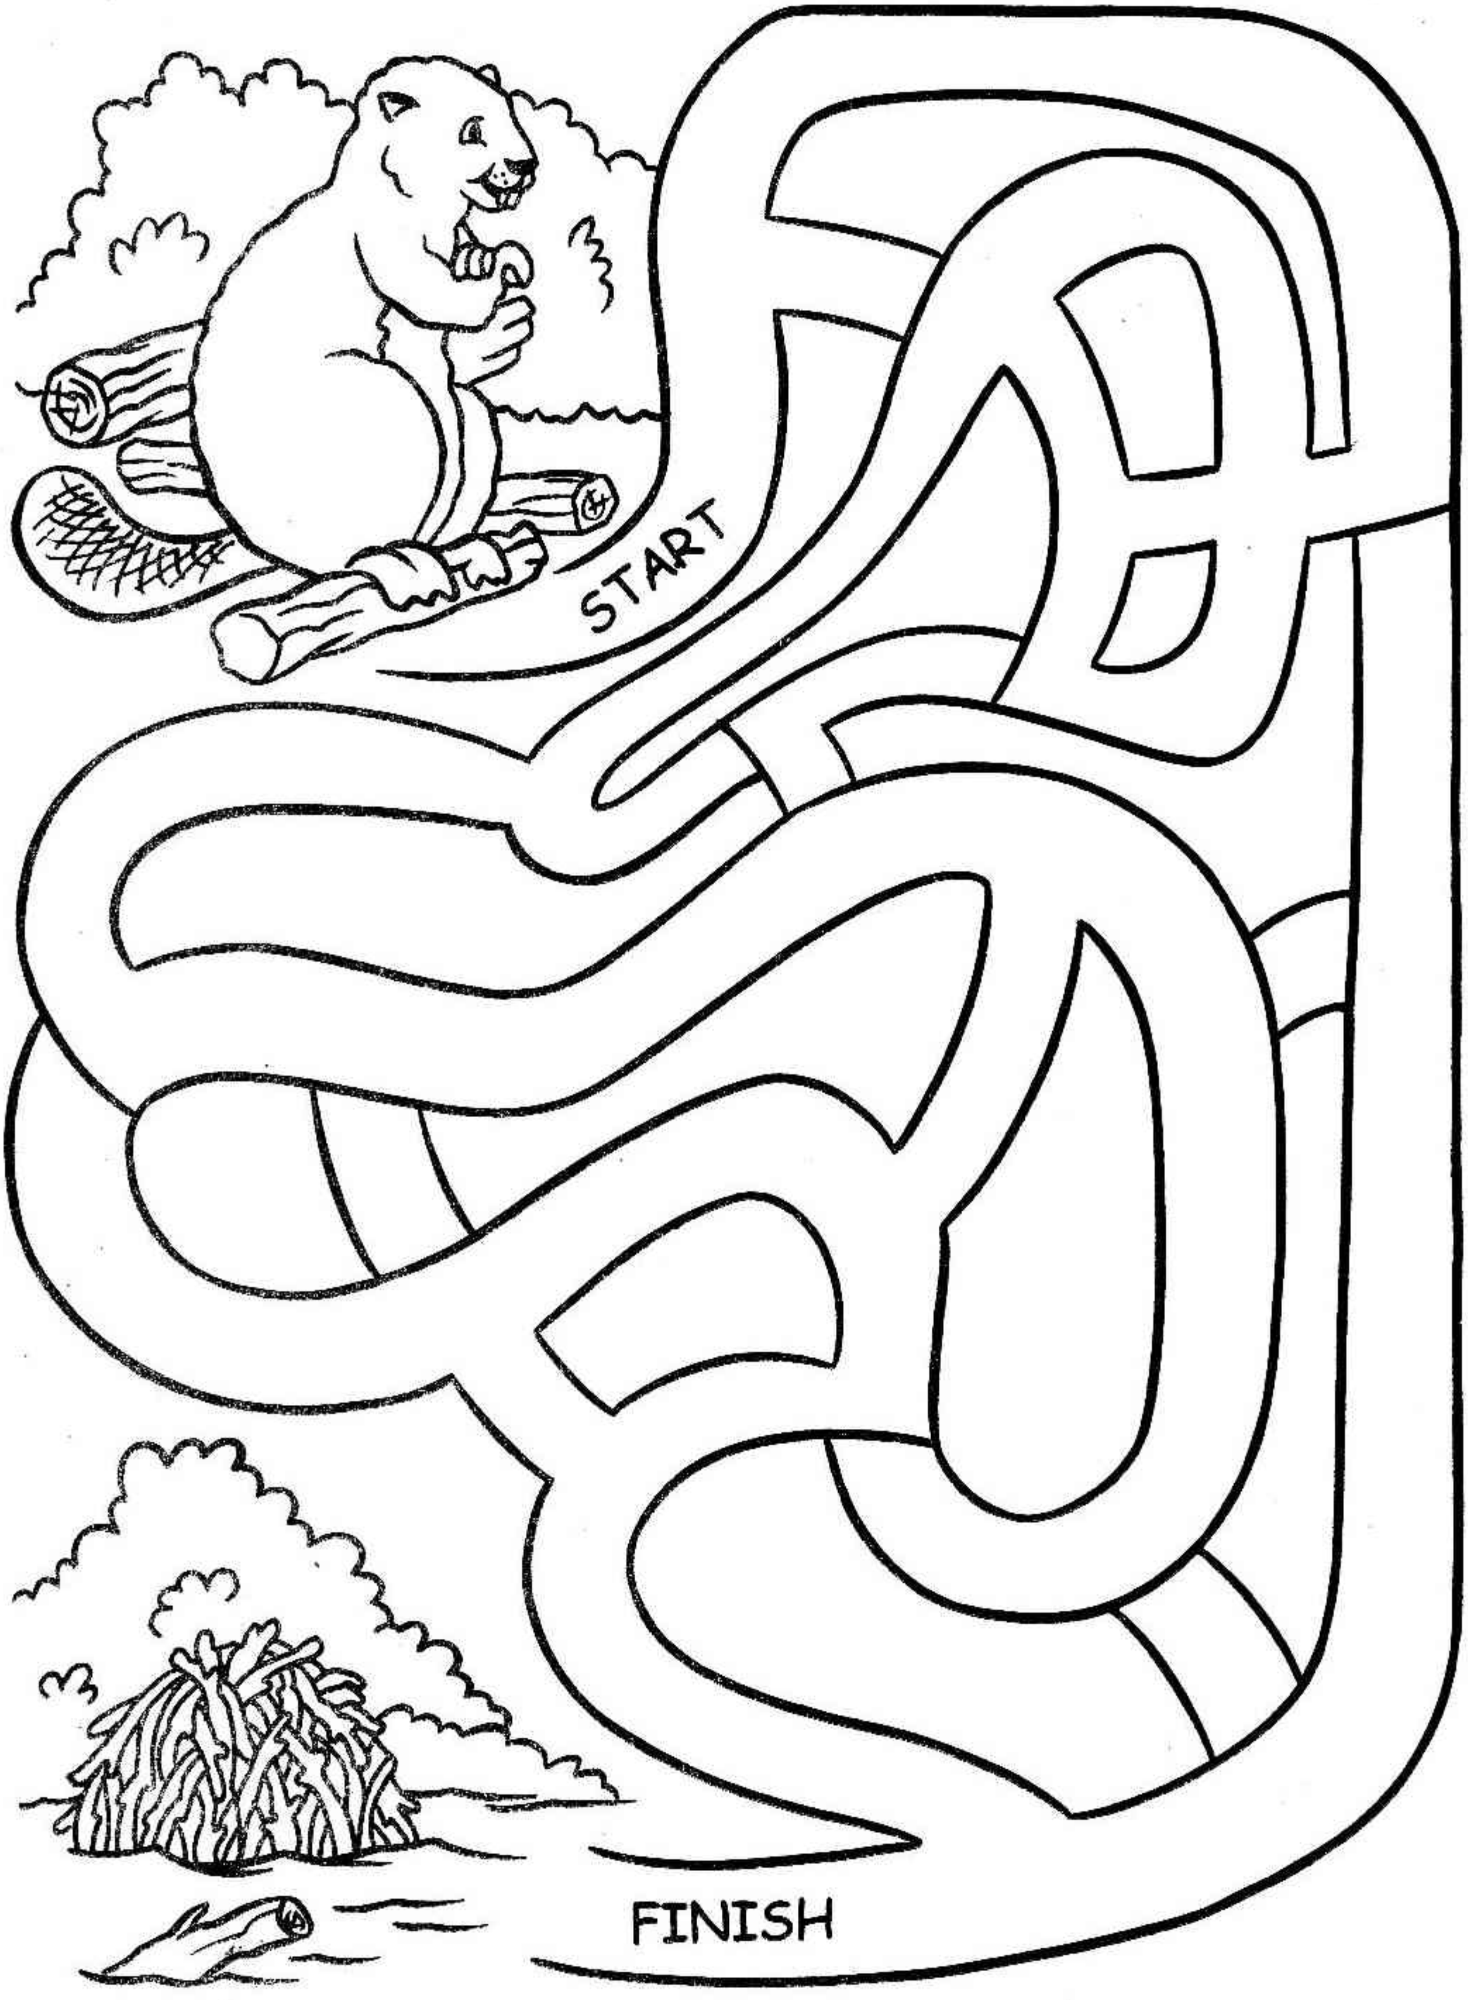

They found a baby eagle in a high nest.

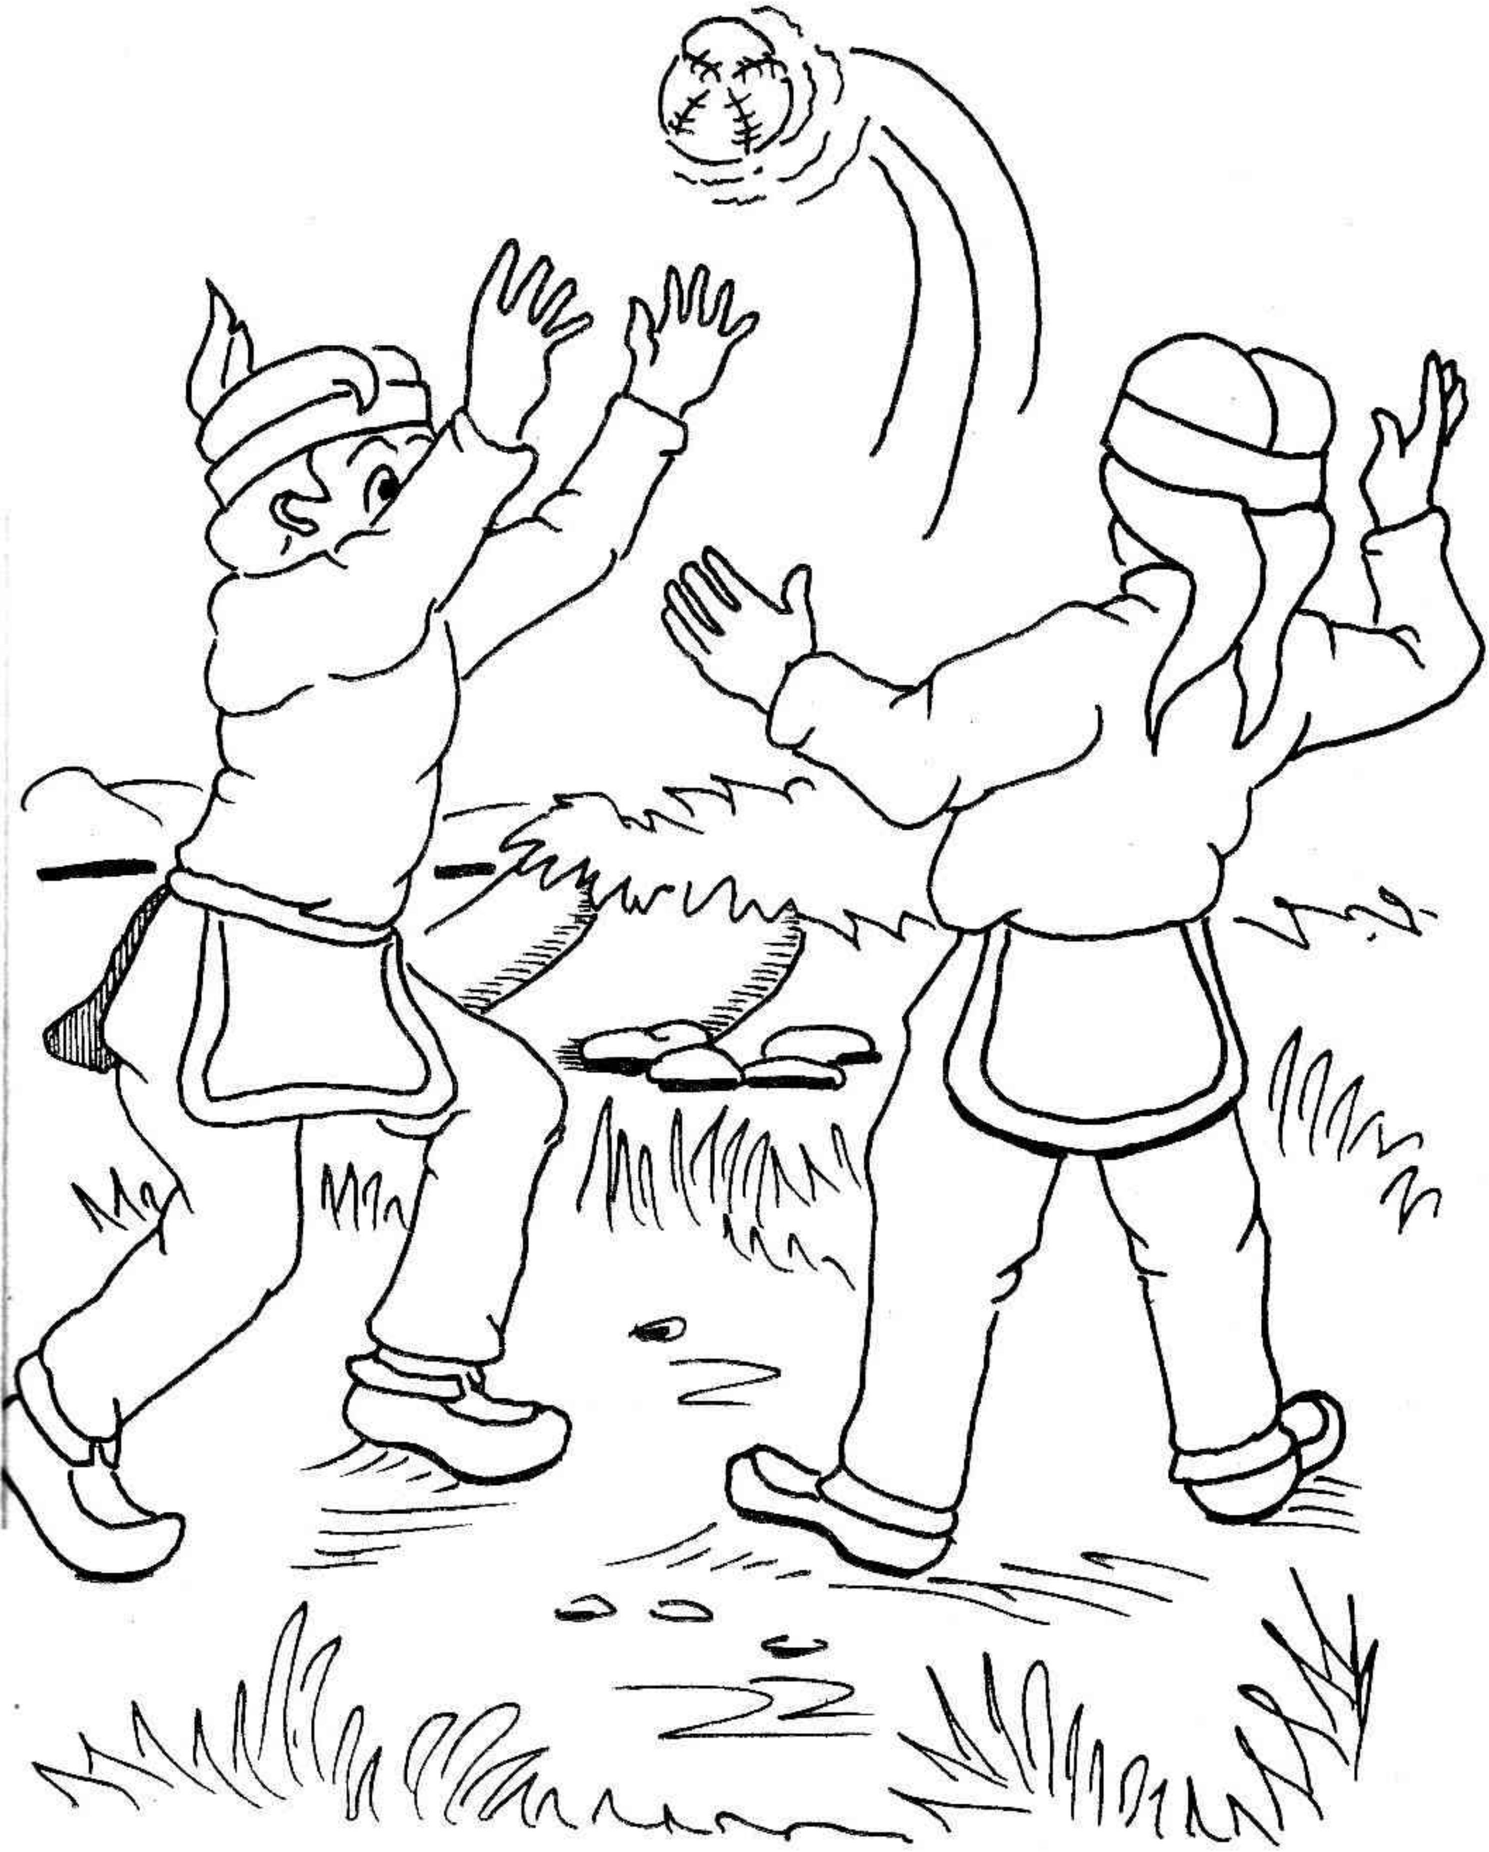

Many kinds of animals lived near the village.

Some animals lived in villages of their own.

Show the beaver the way to his home.

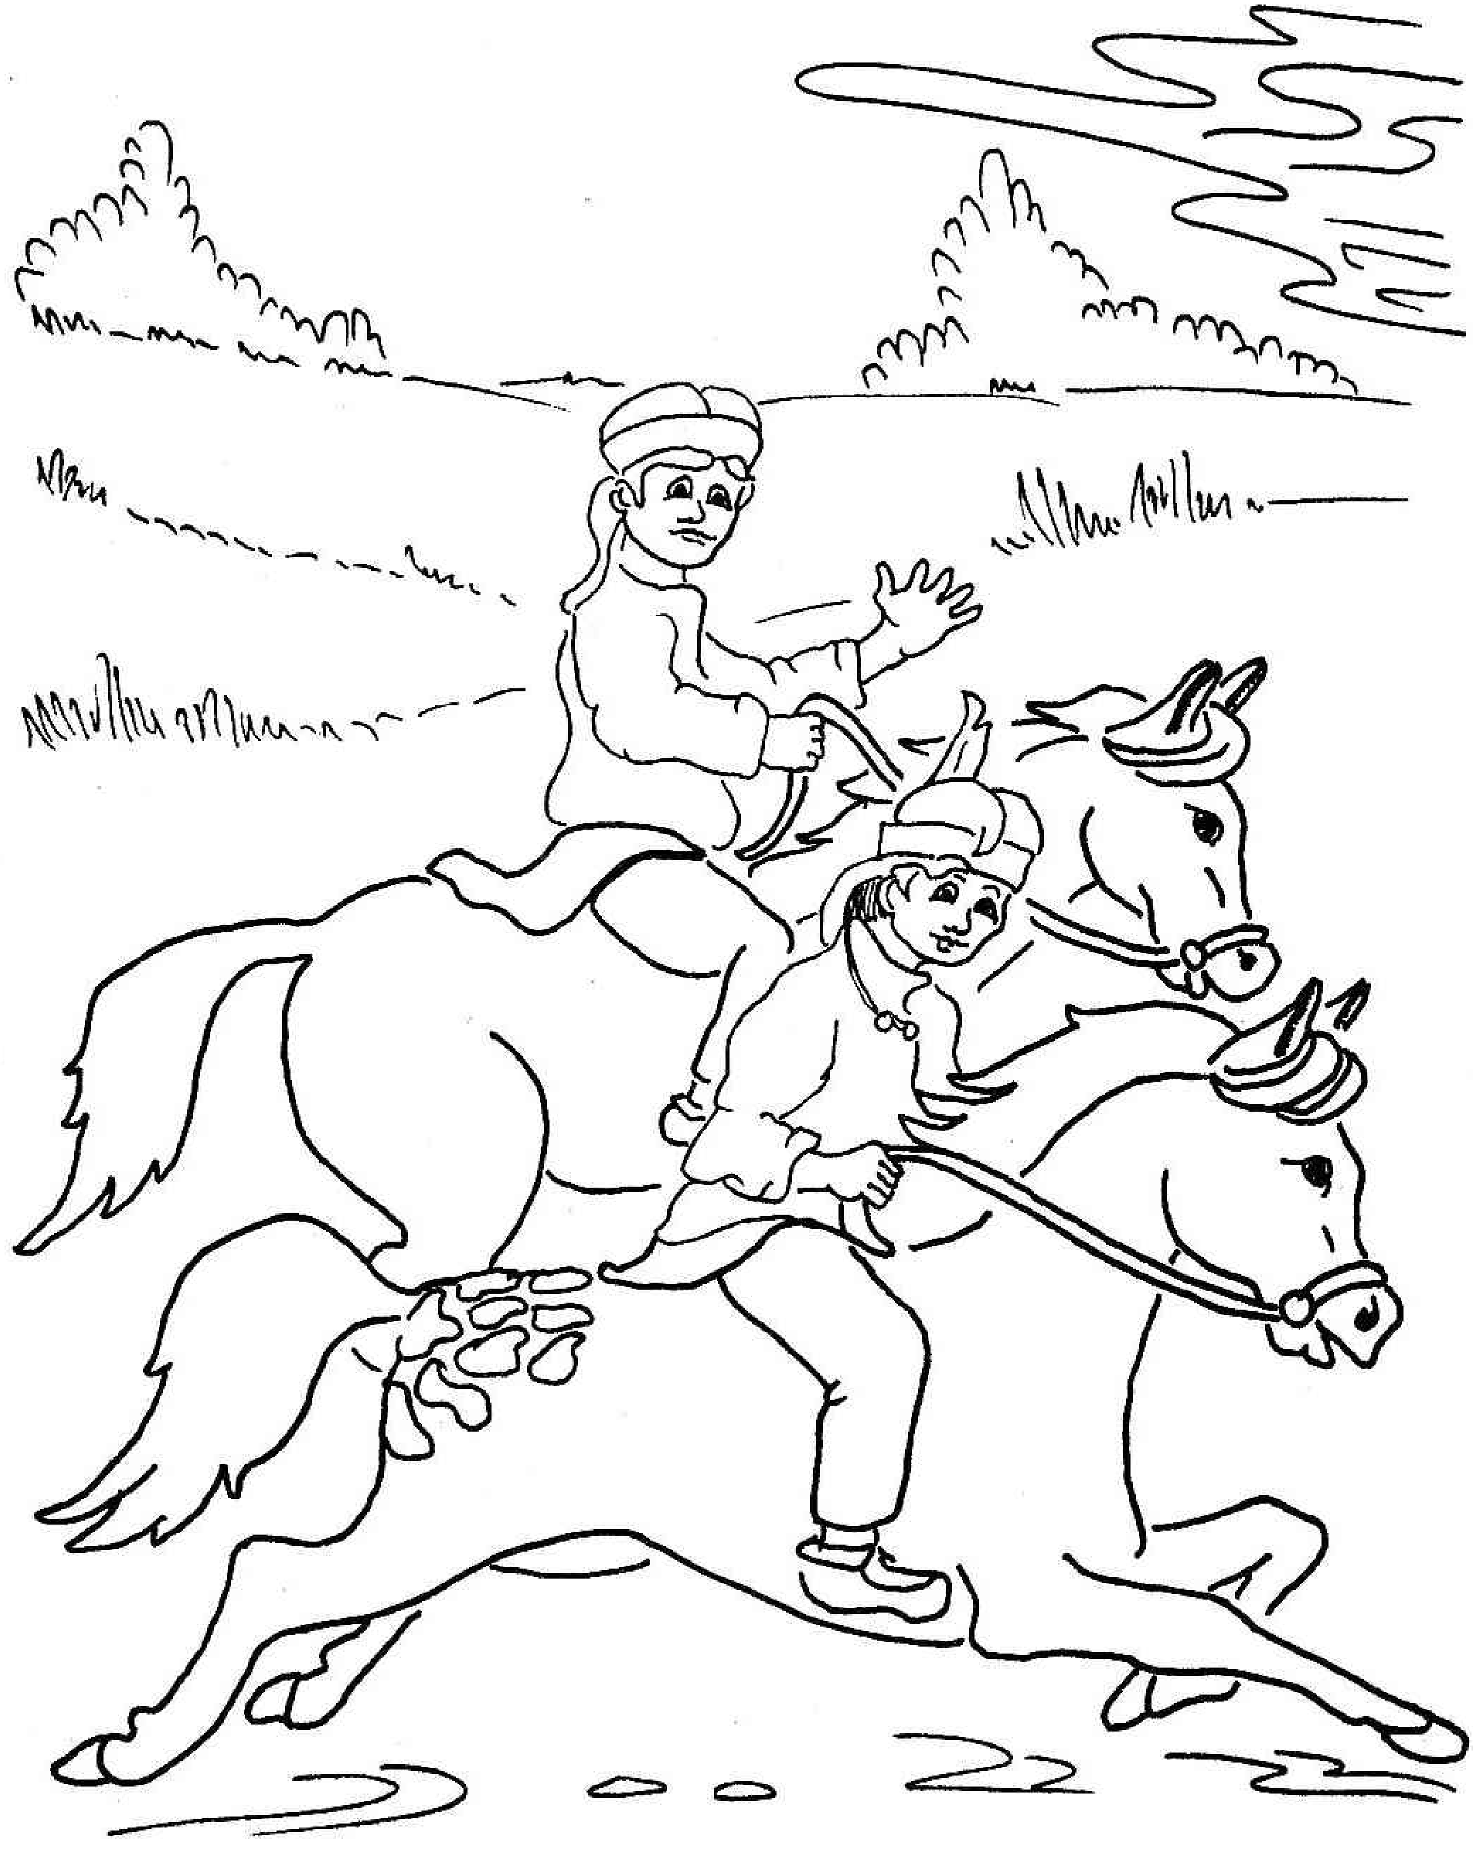

Little Bear and Gray Cloud played lots of games.

They liked to play tag.

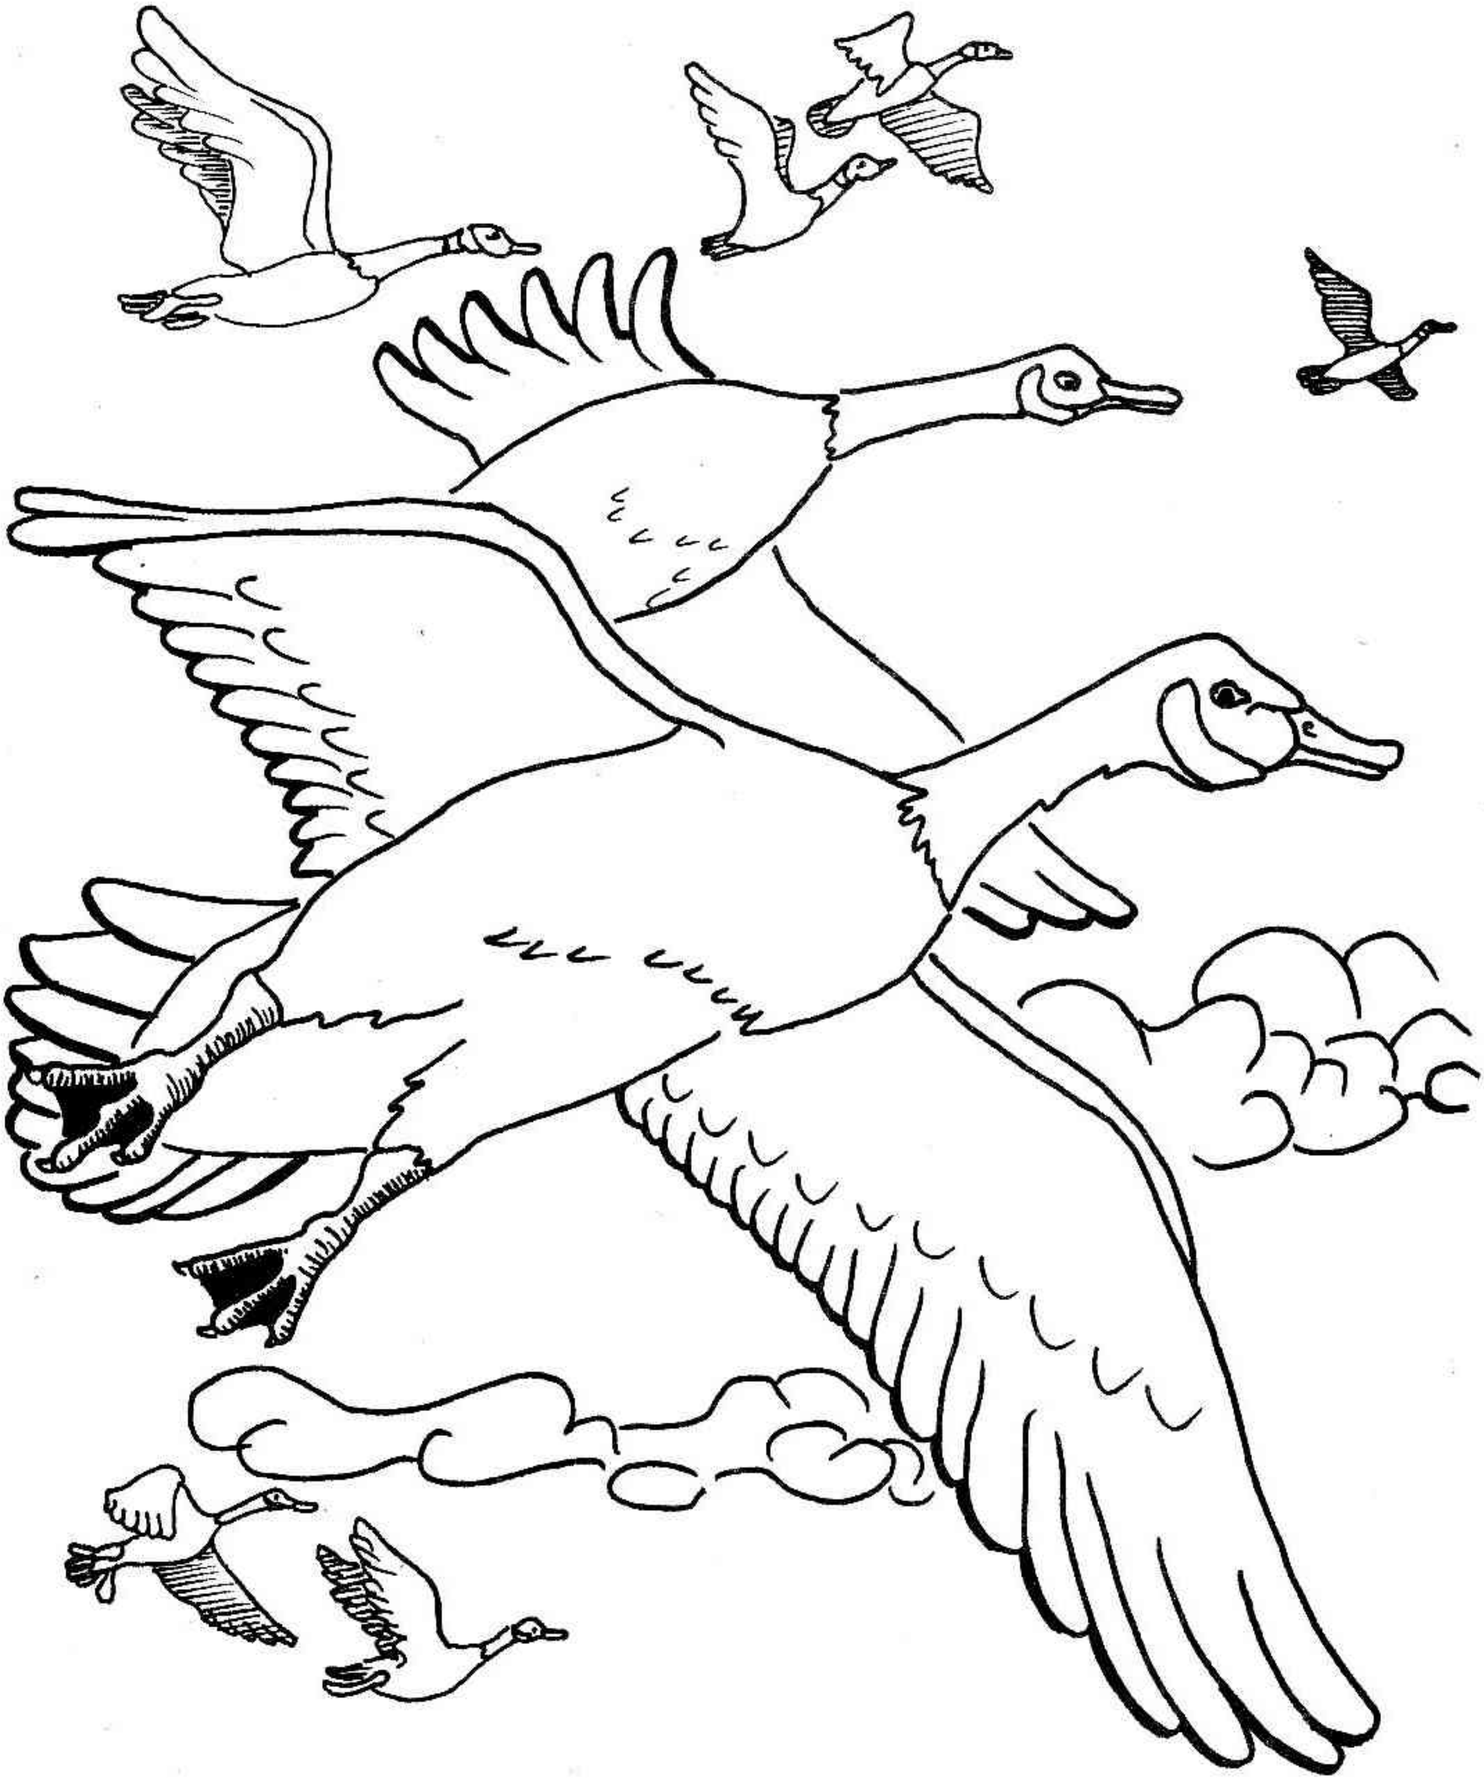

They played hide and seek.

It was fun riding their horses.

Sometimes they would see wagon trains heading west.

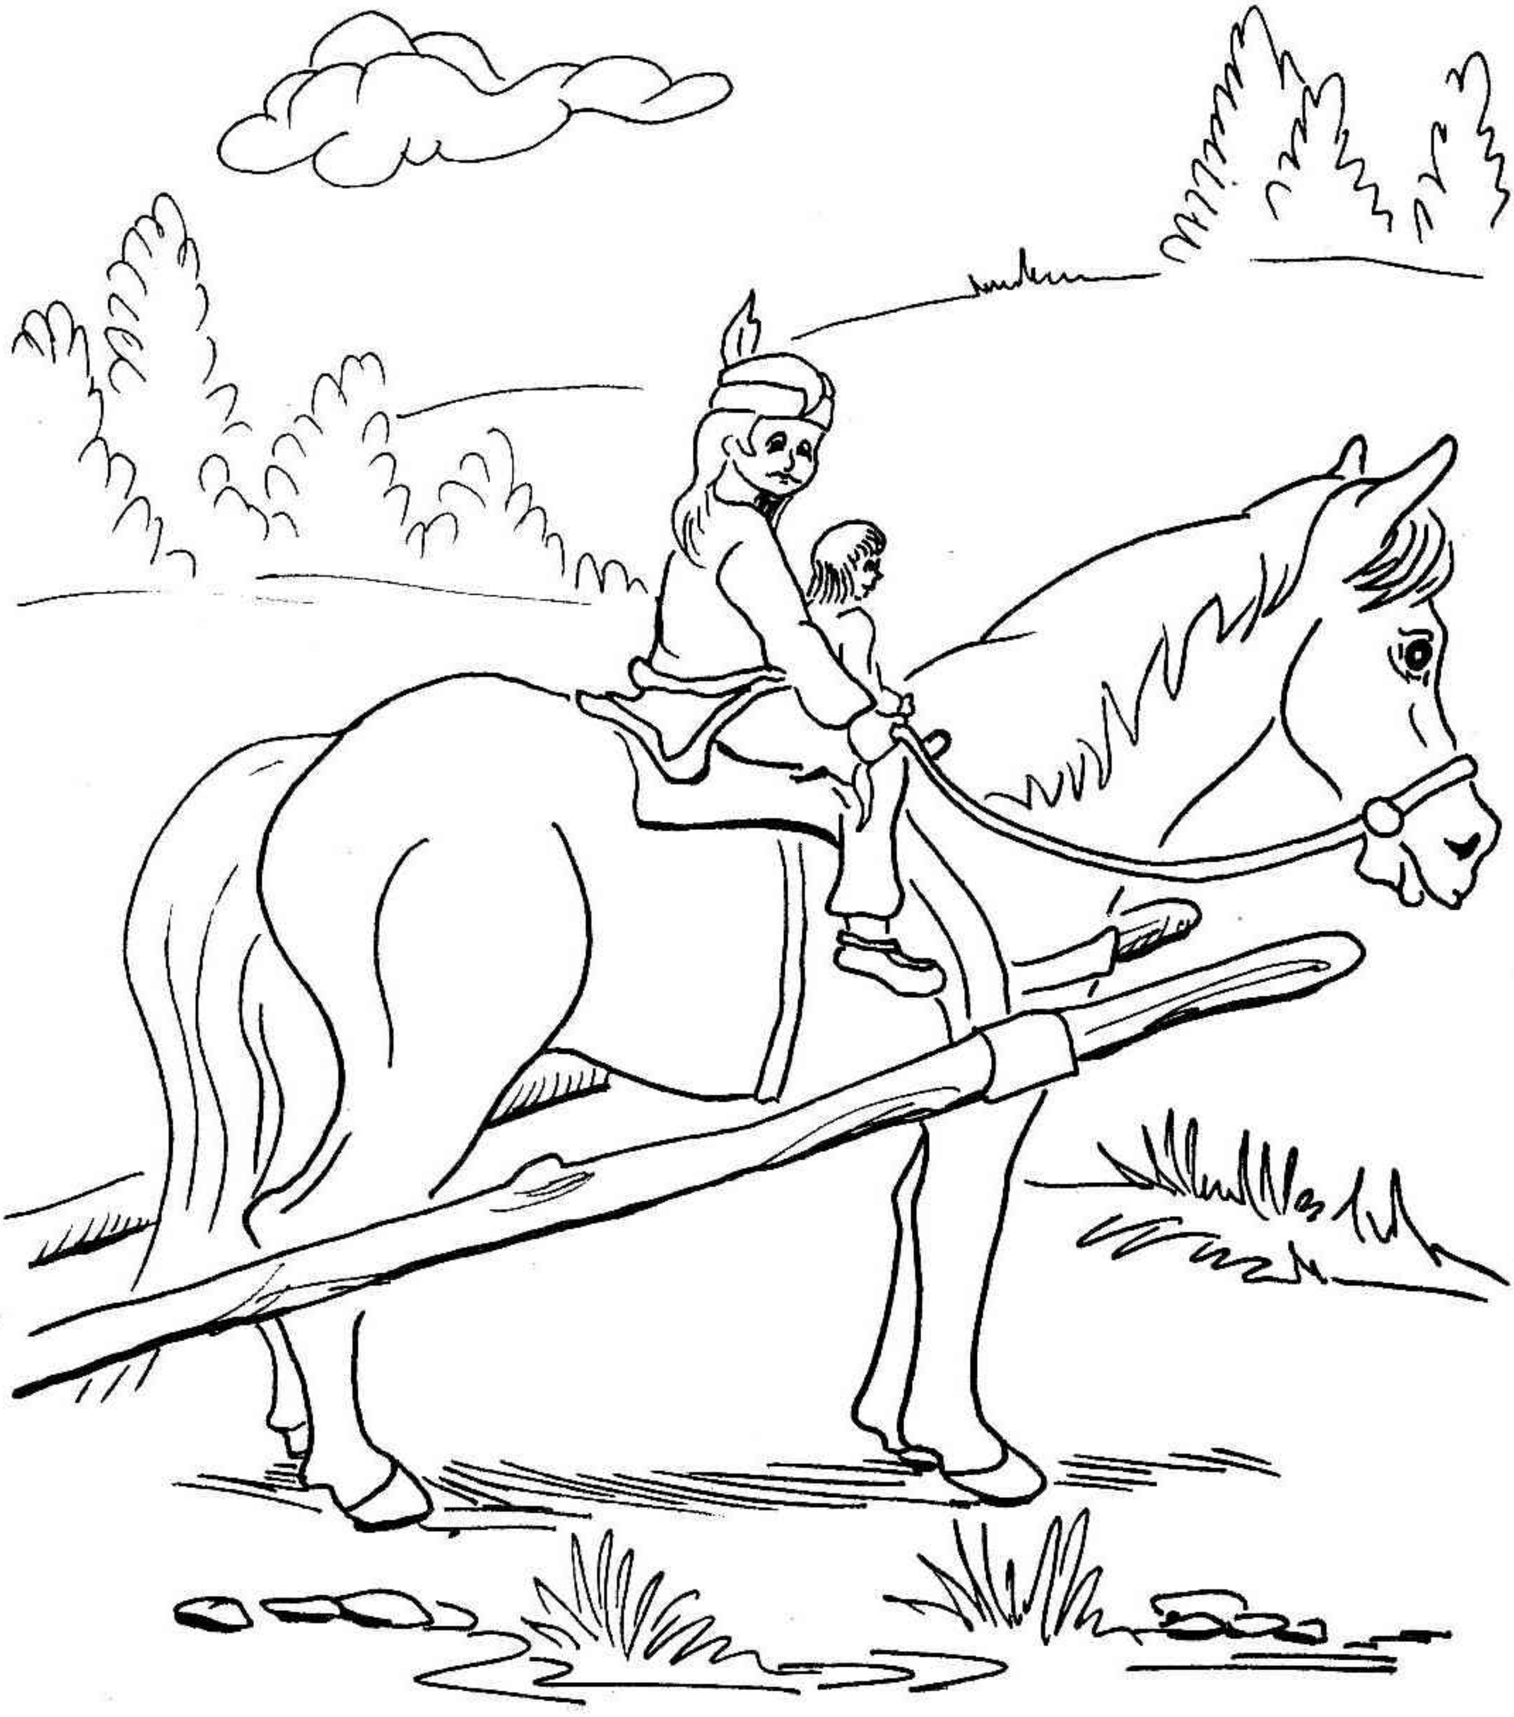

The geese were flying south. Winter was coming.

The tribe would soon move to its winter hunting grounds.

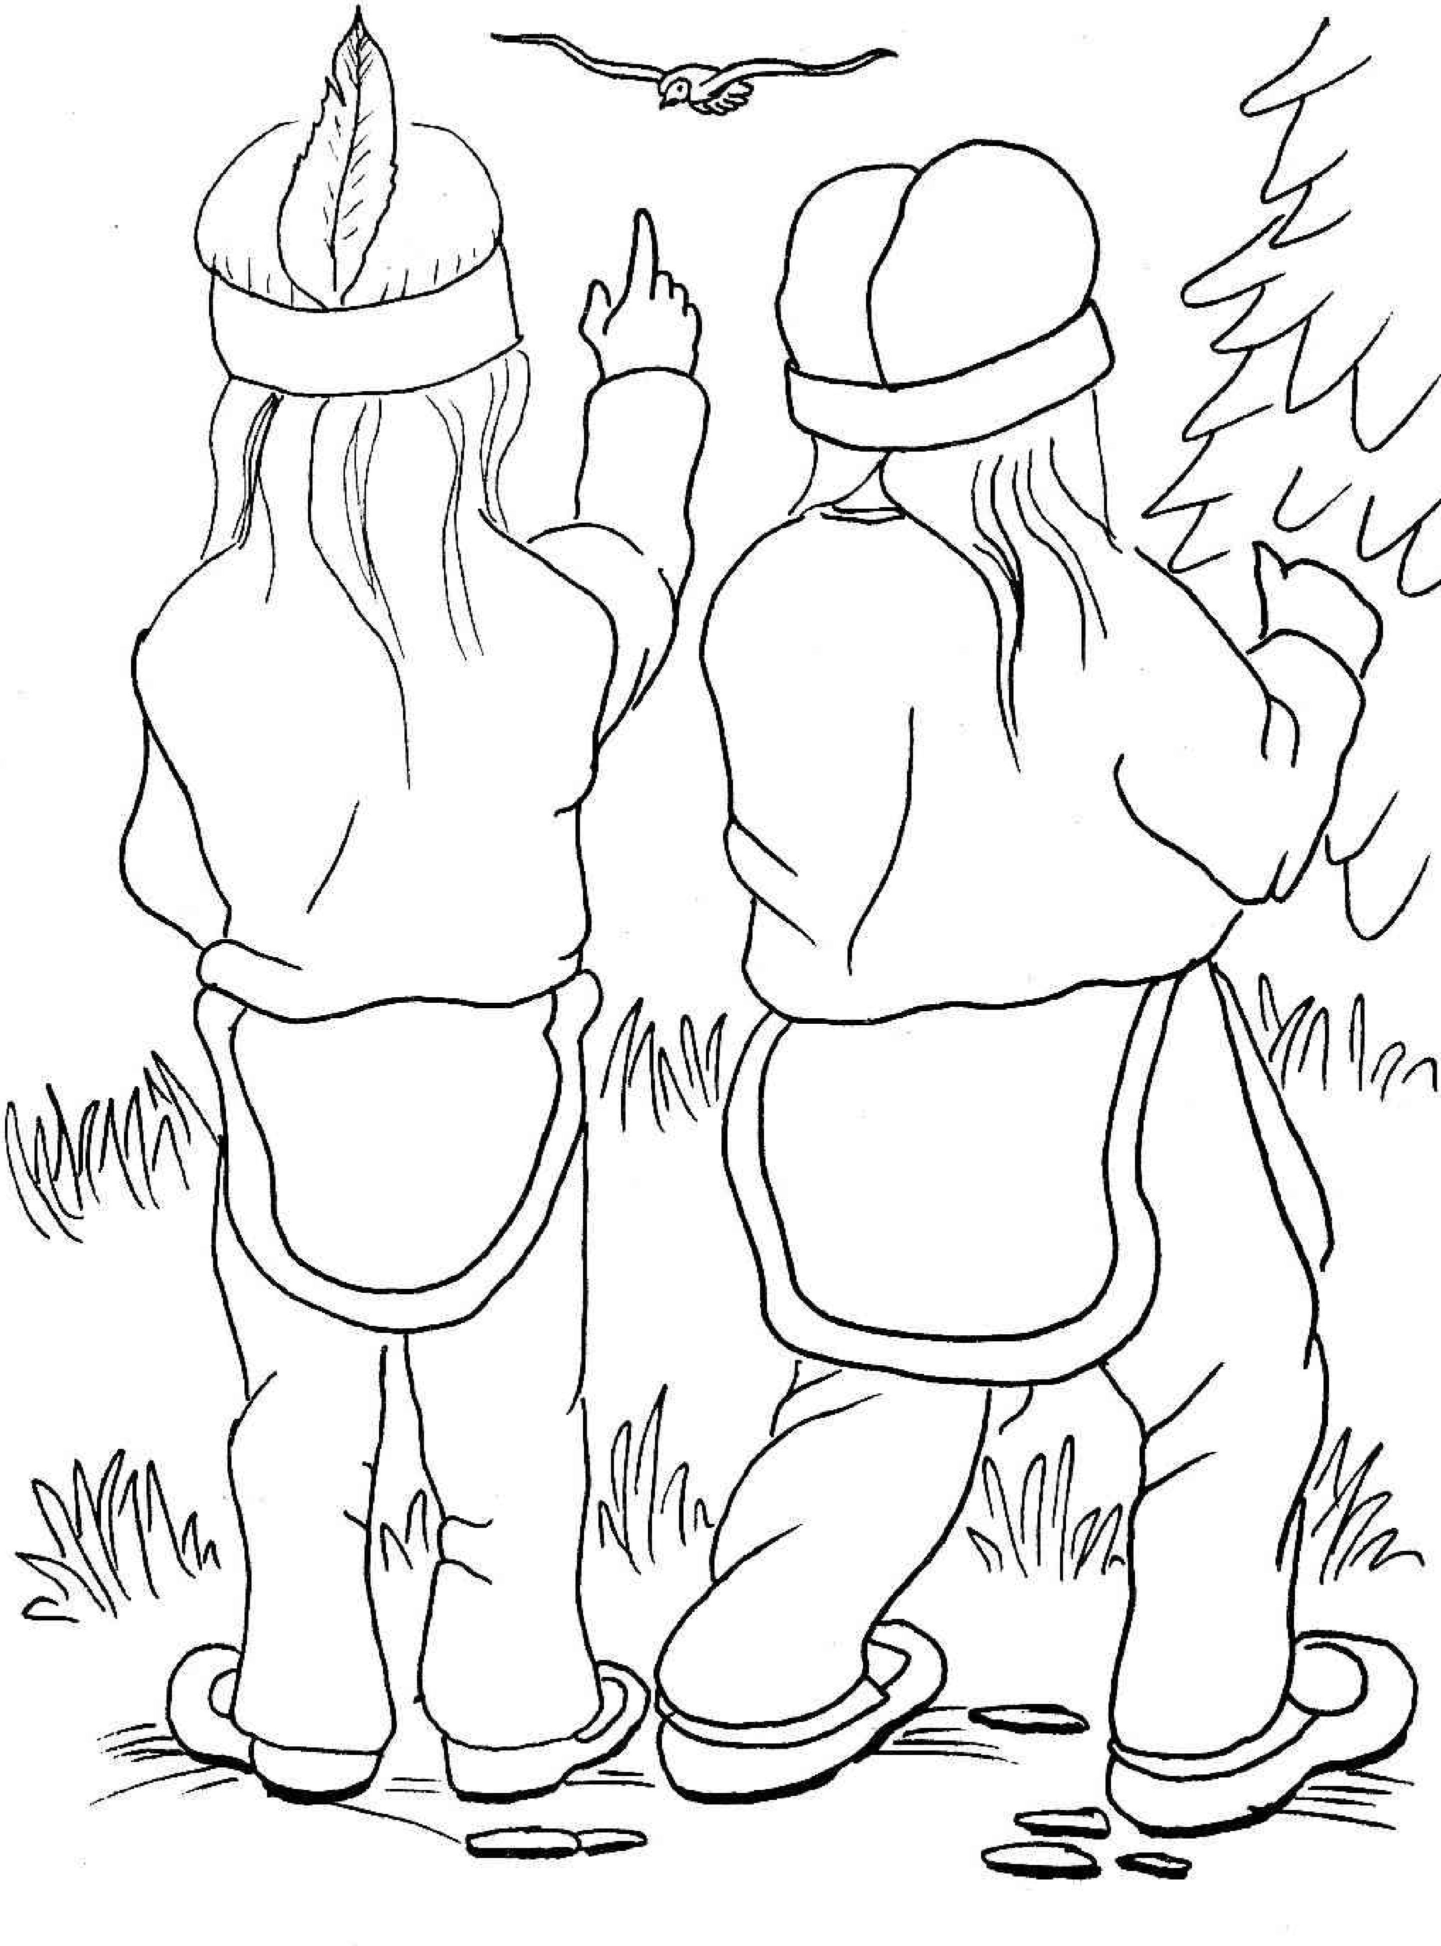

Little Bear helped to take down his family's tepee.

Little Bear gave his sister a ride.

It did not take long to set up the village in its winter location.

Little Bear and Gray Cloud started exploring their new home.

They saw a raccoon fishing for its dinner.

Little Bear caught a fish for dinner, too.

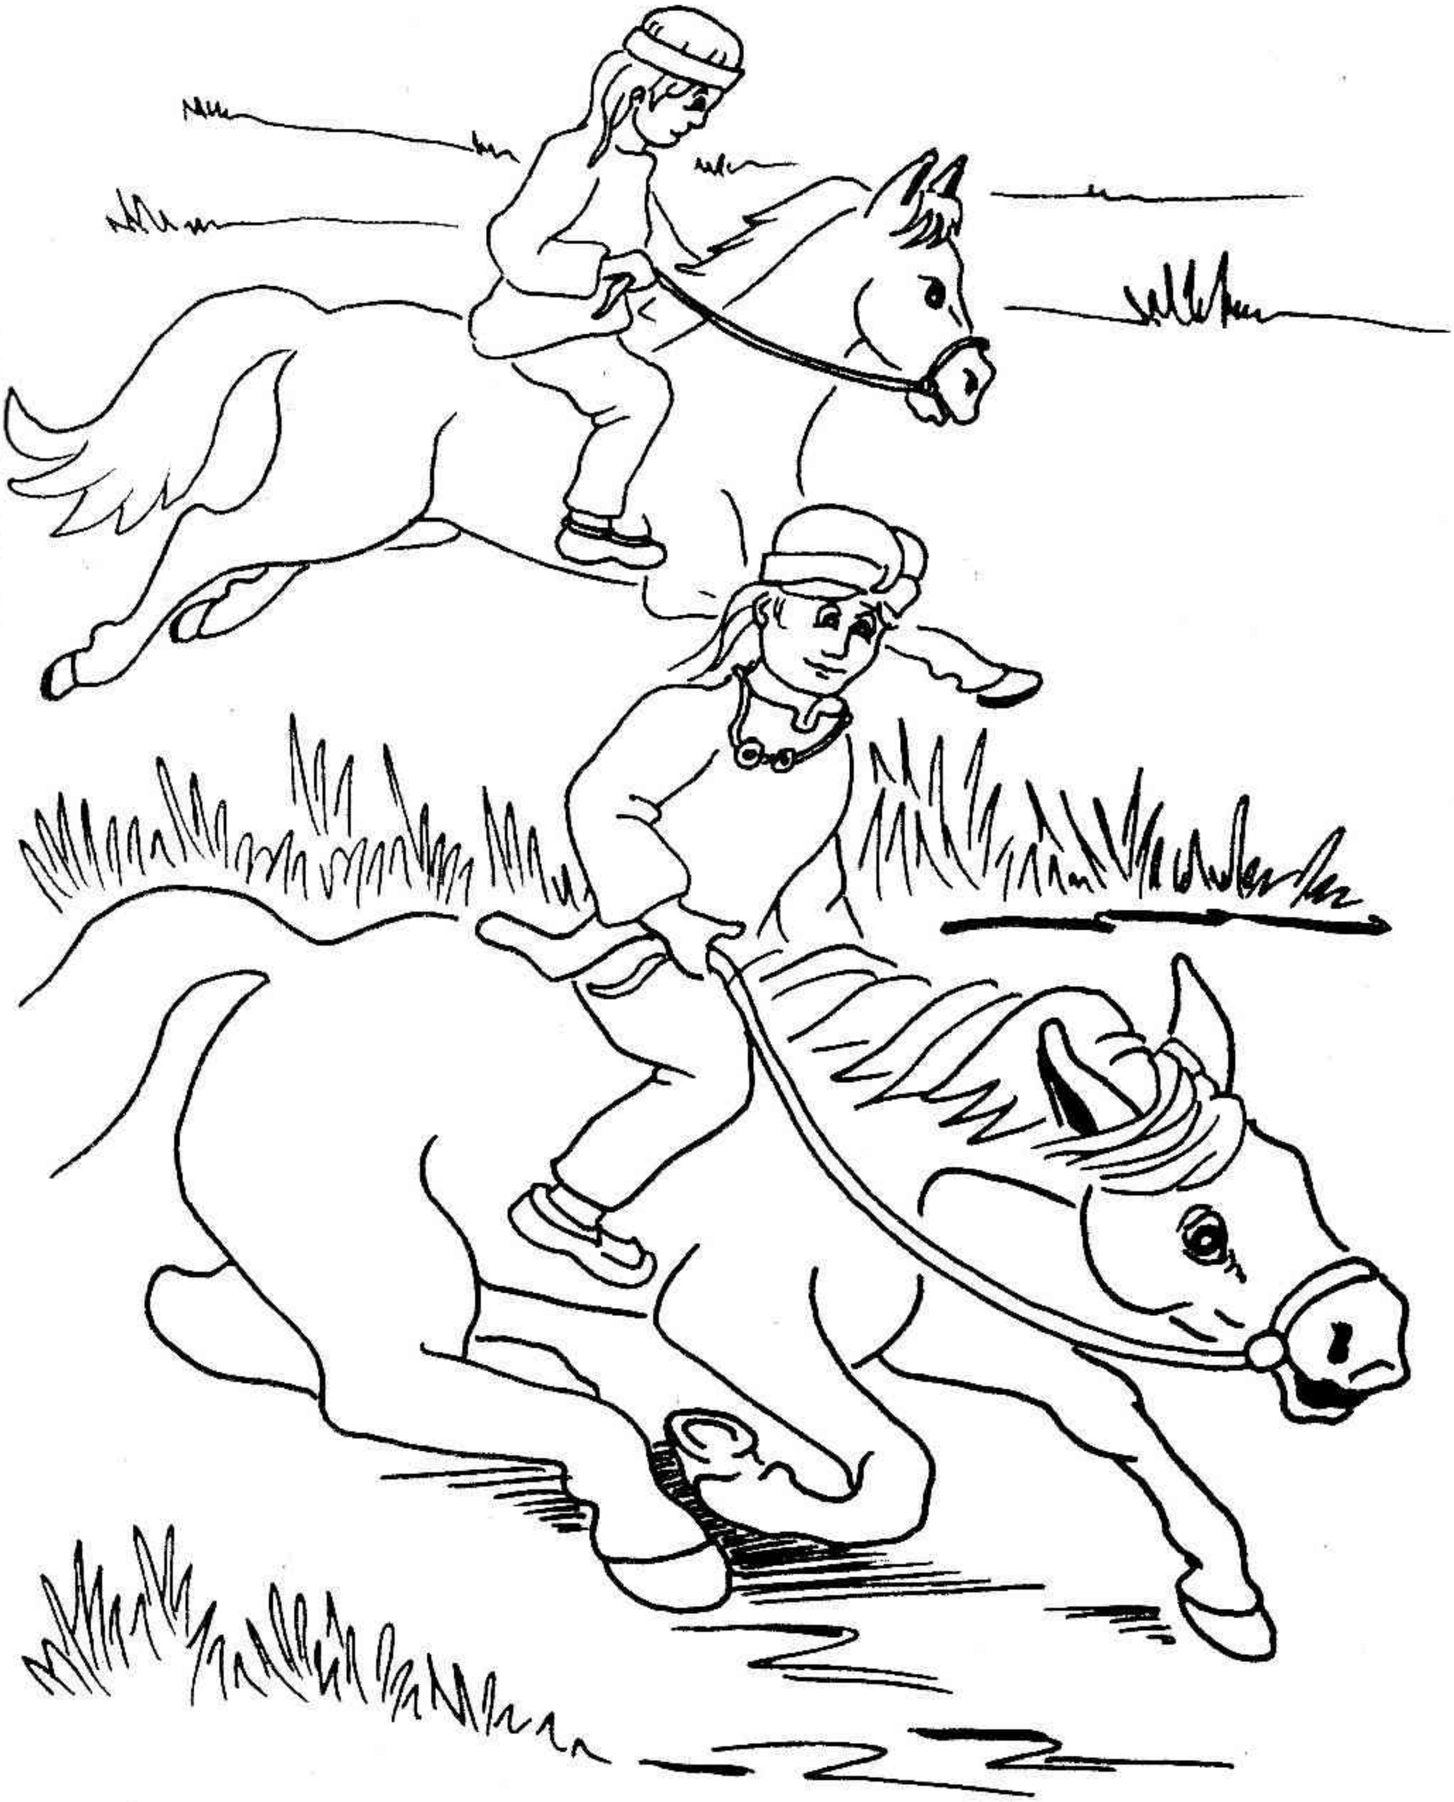

Gray Cloud wasn't so lucky. He fell into the river.

Little Bear's mother was glad to have such fine fish for dinner.

Little Bear's father tells him it's time for him to start practicing his hunting skills.

The boys practiced their riding.

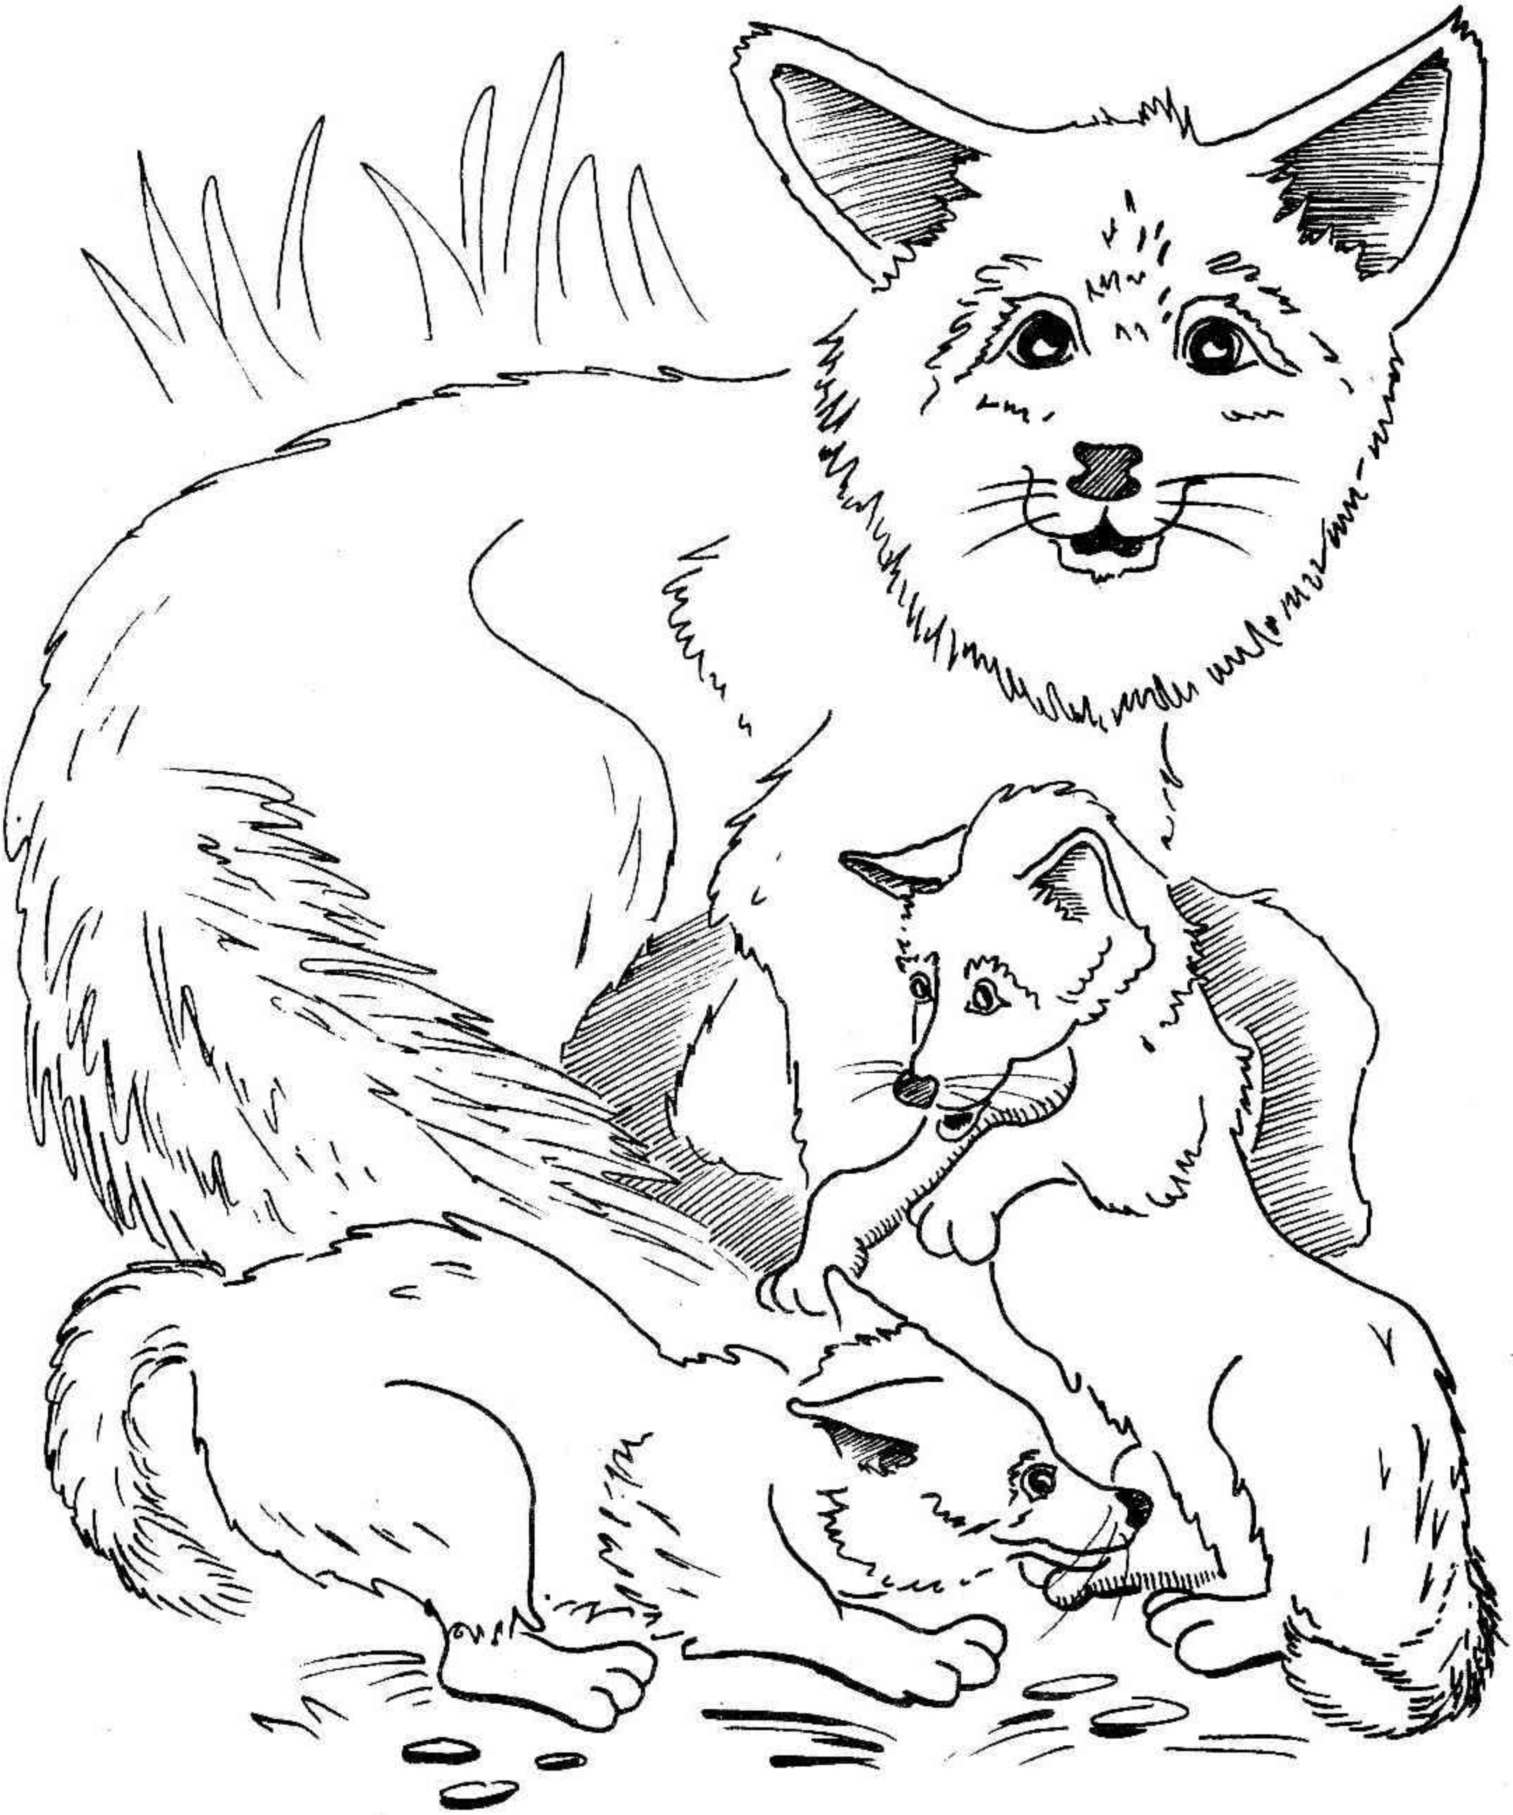

They practiced shooting arrows at trees.

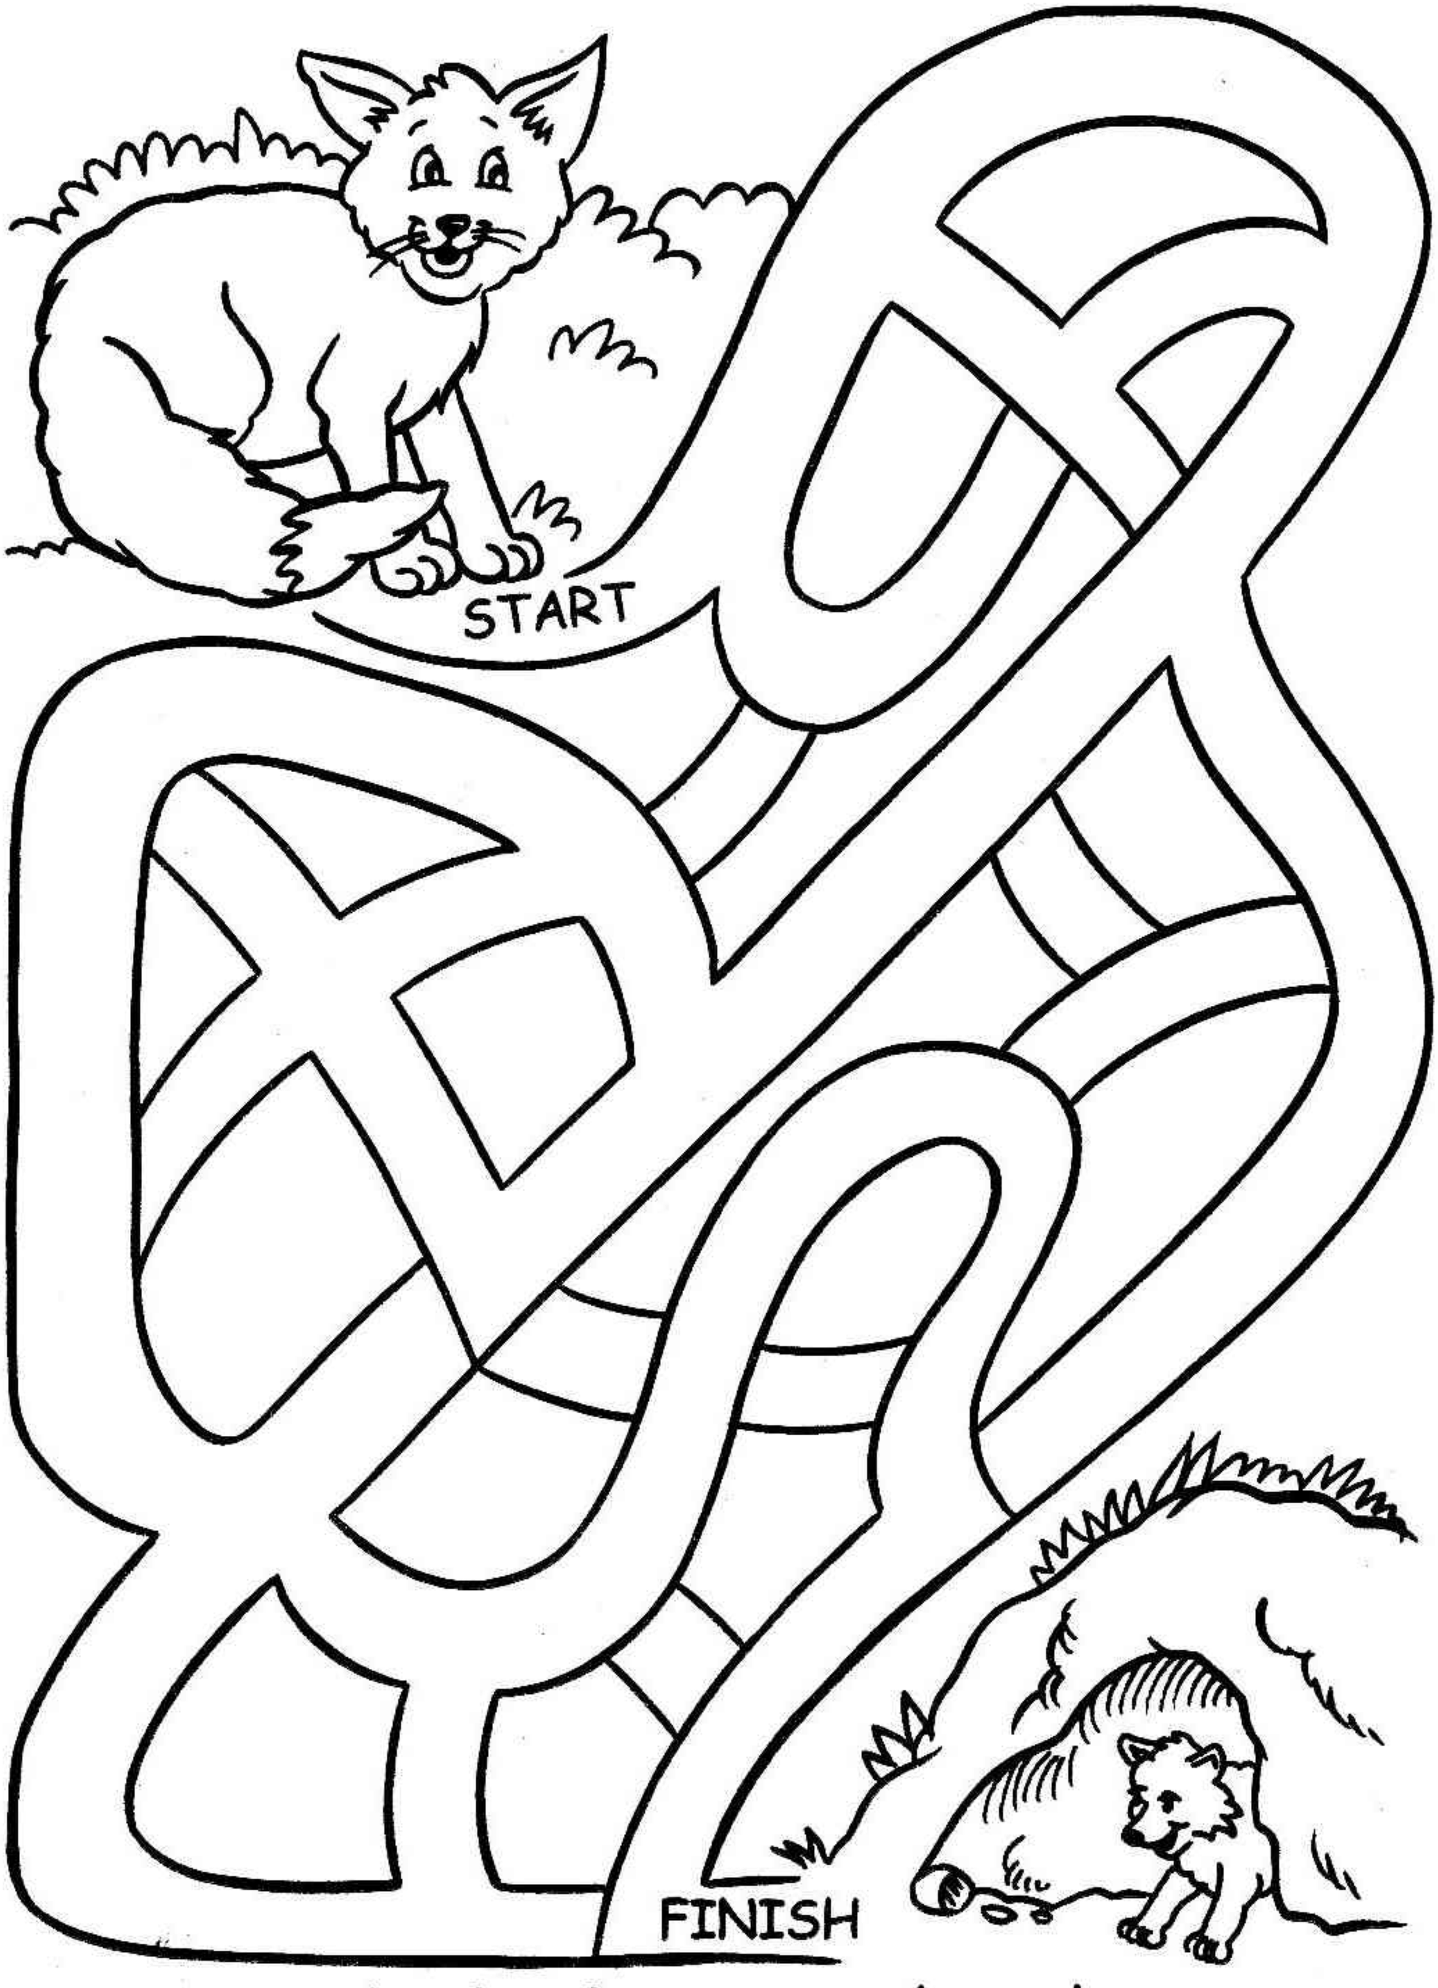

You had to be able to ride and shoot to hunt buffalo.

Time to rest, and then go exploring again.

They saw young fox pups playing.

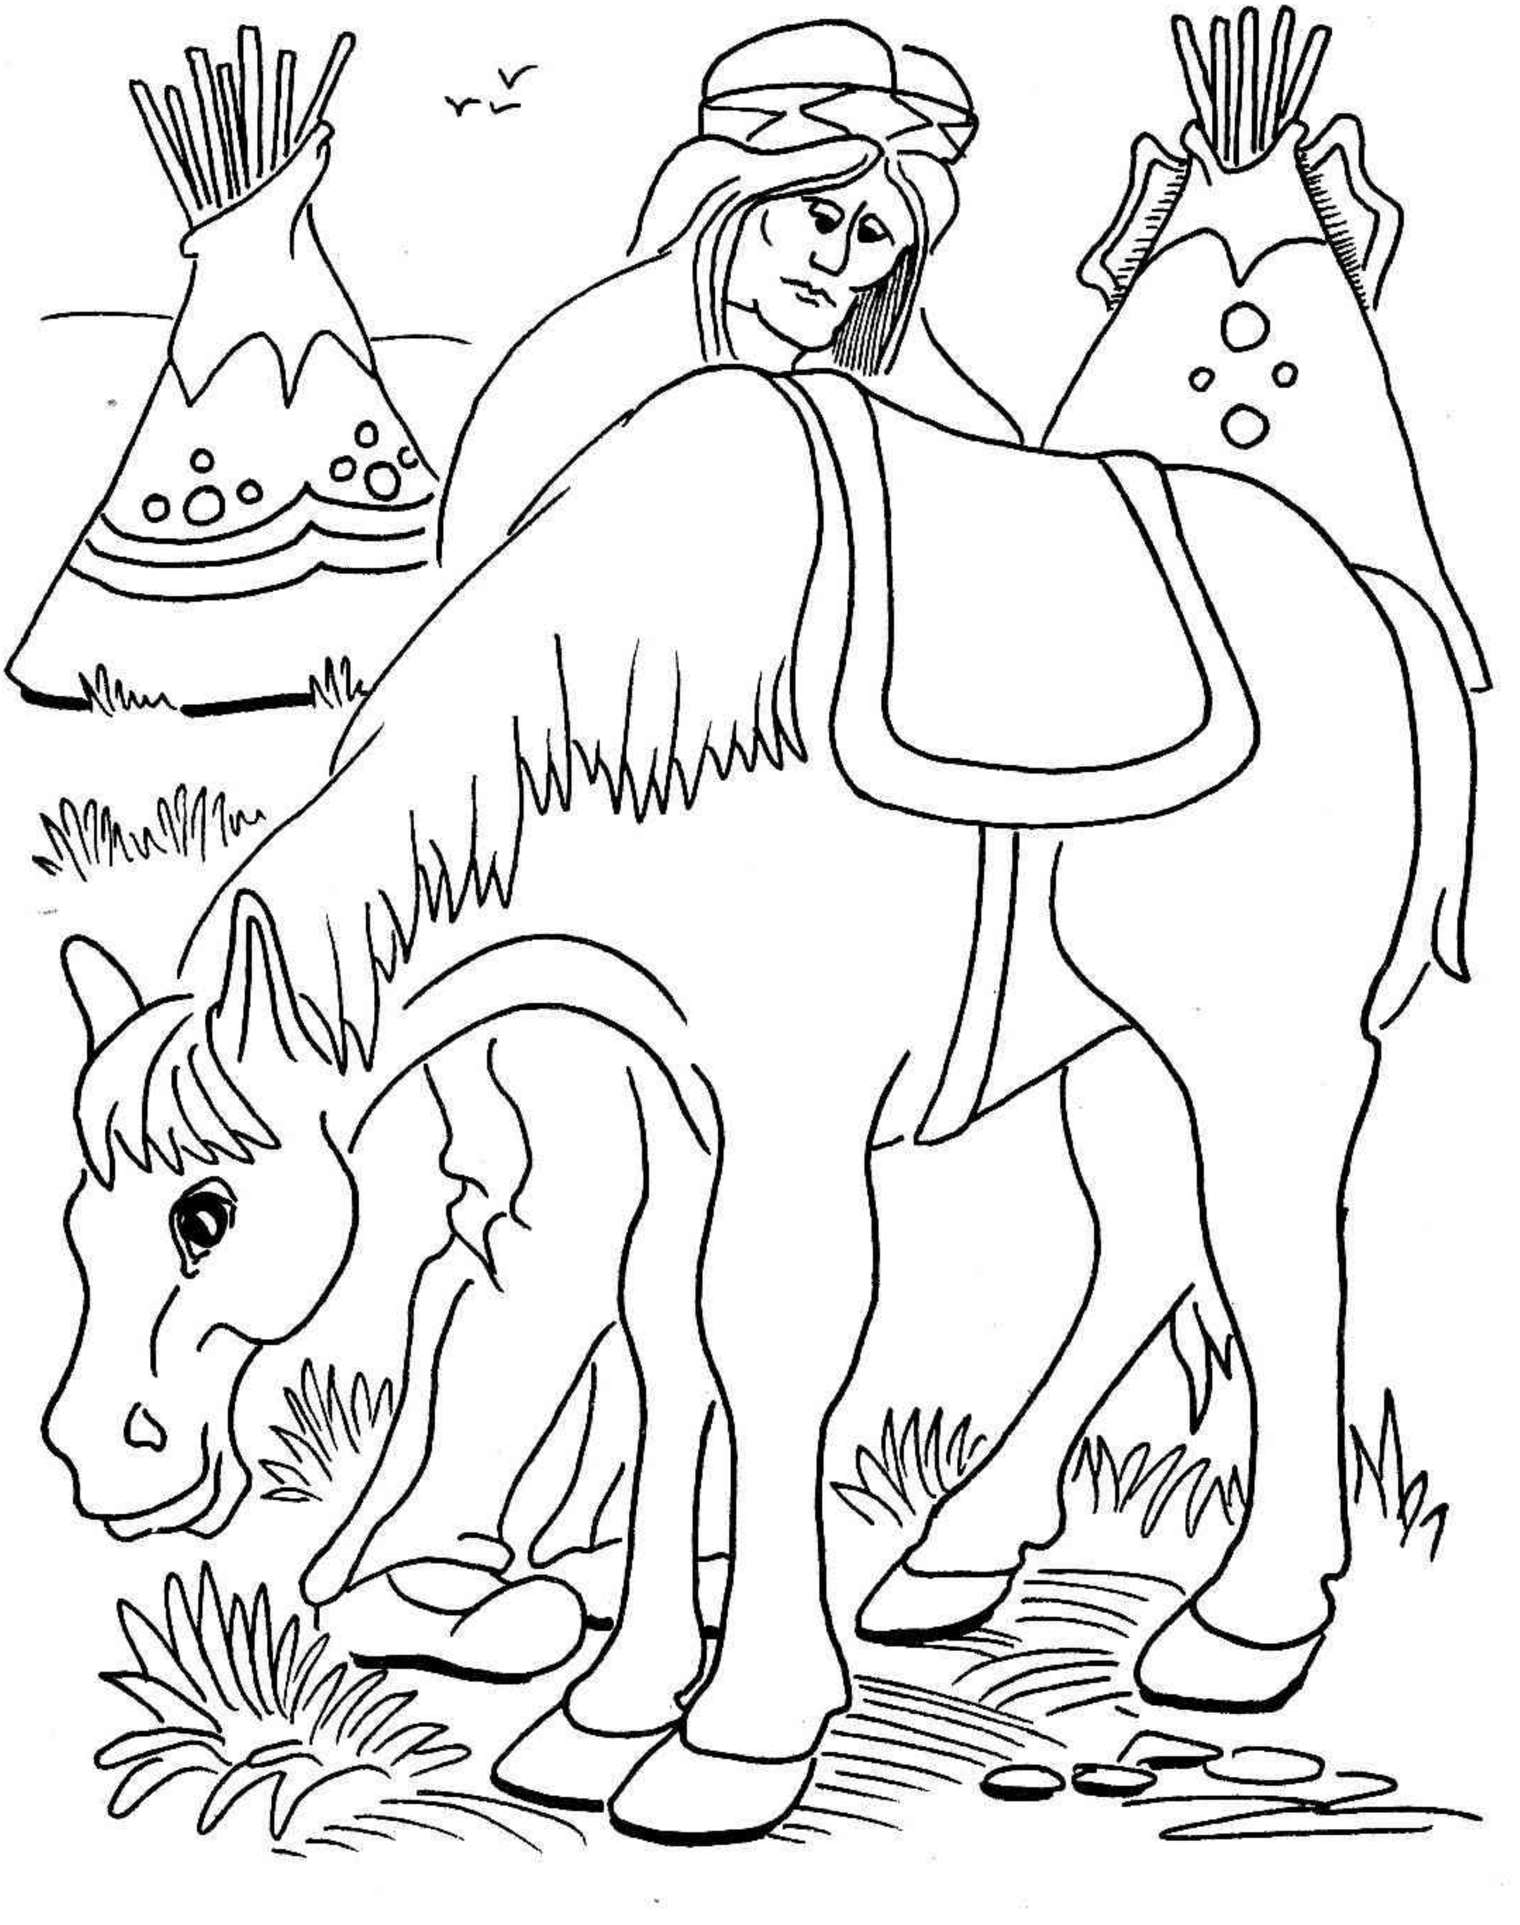

Help the fox get to her den.

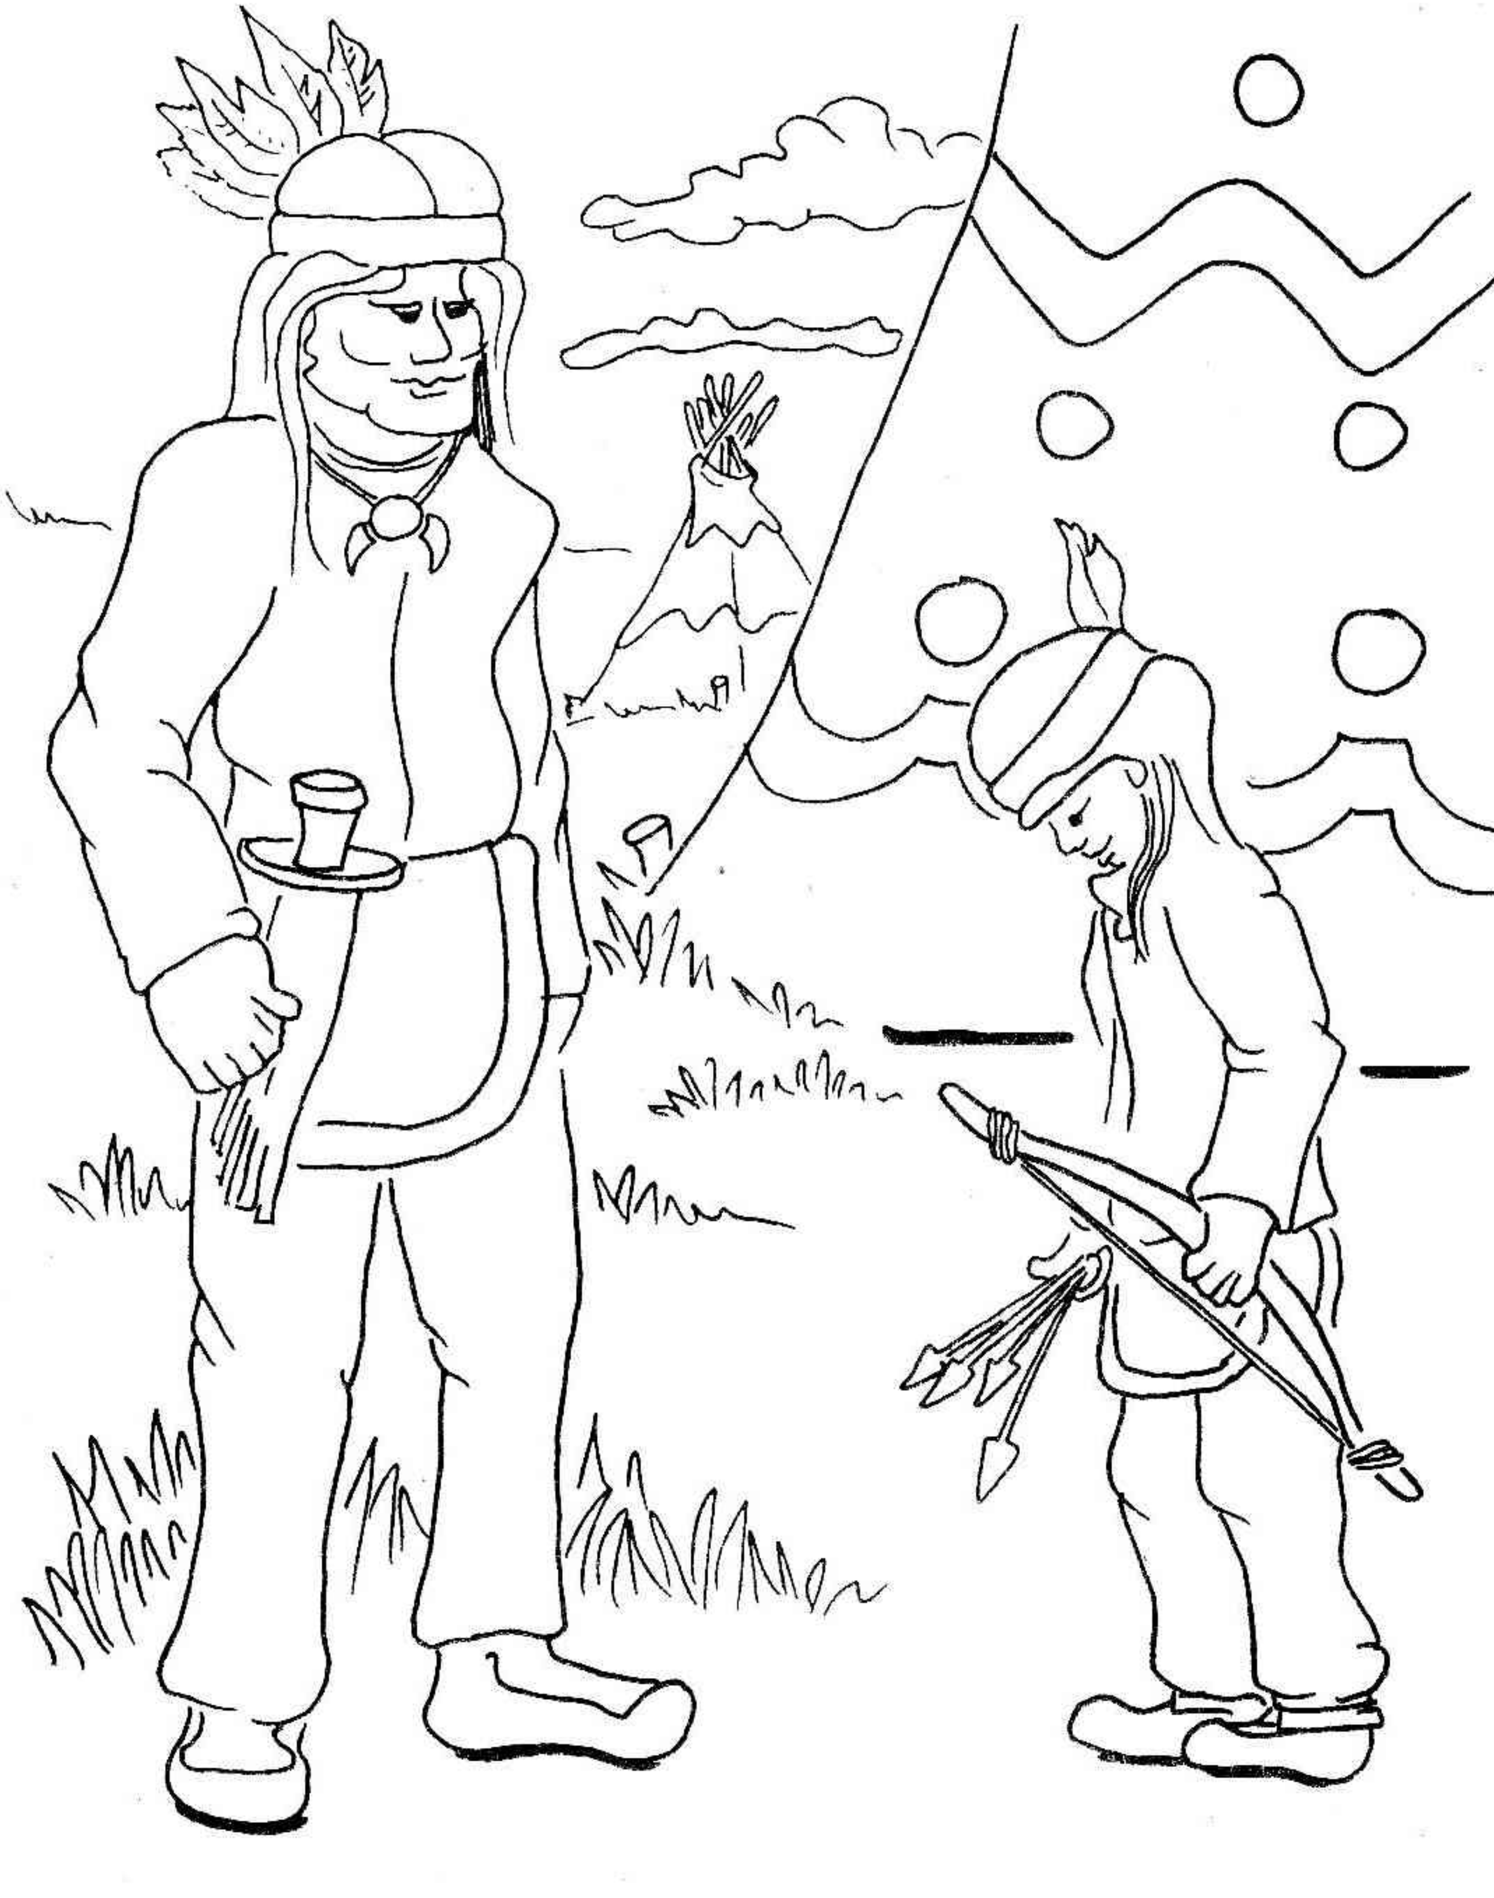

The bear cubs were having fun, too.

The mother bear sent the boys home.

Back at the village, the hunters were preparing for the buffalo hunt.

Little Bear asked his father if he could go along.

His father tells him, "Not this time." He must stay behind and protect his mother and baby sister.

The hunters leave for the buffalo hunt.

Little Bear and Gray Cloud know that some day they will be great hunters, too.

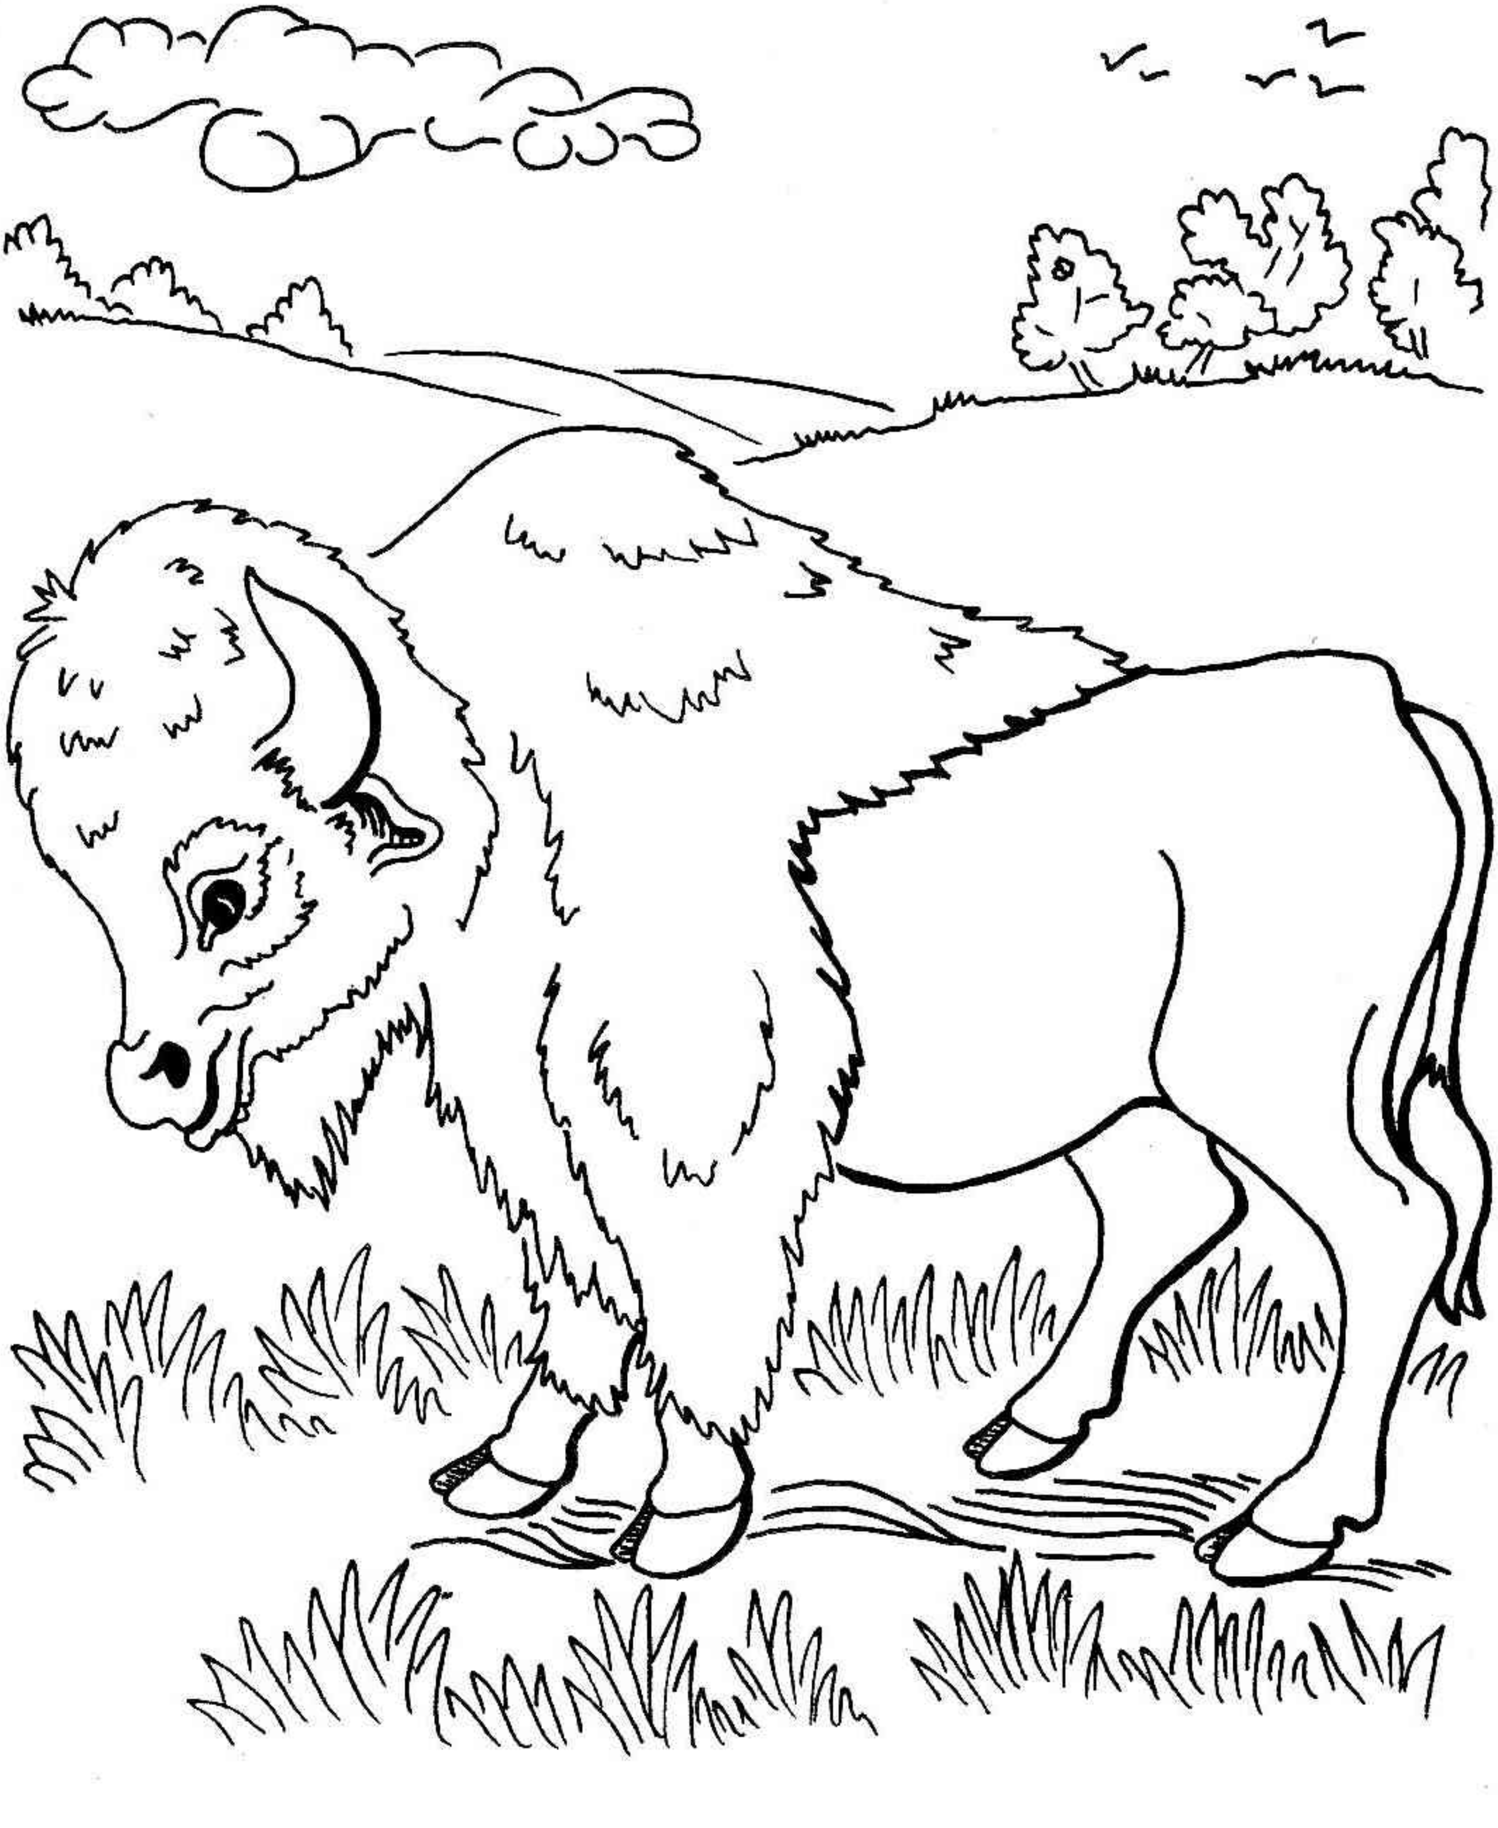

With his father gone, Little Bear helped his mother around the tepee.

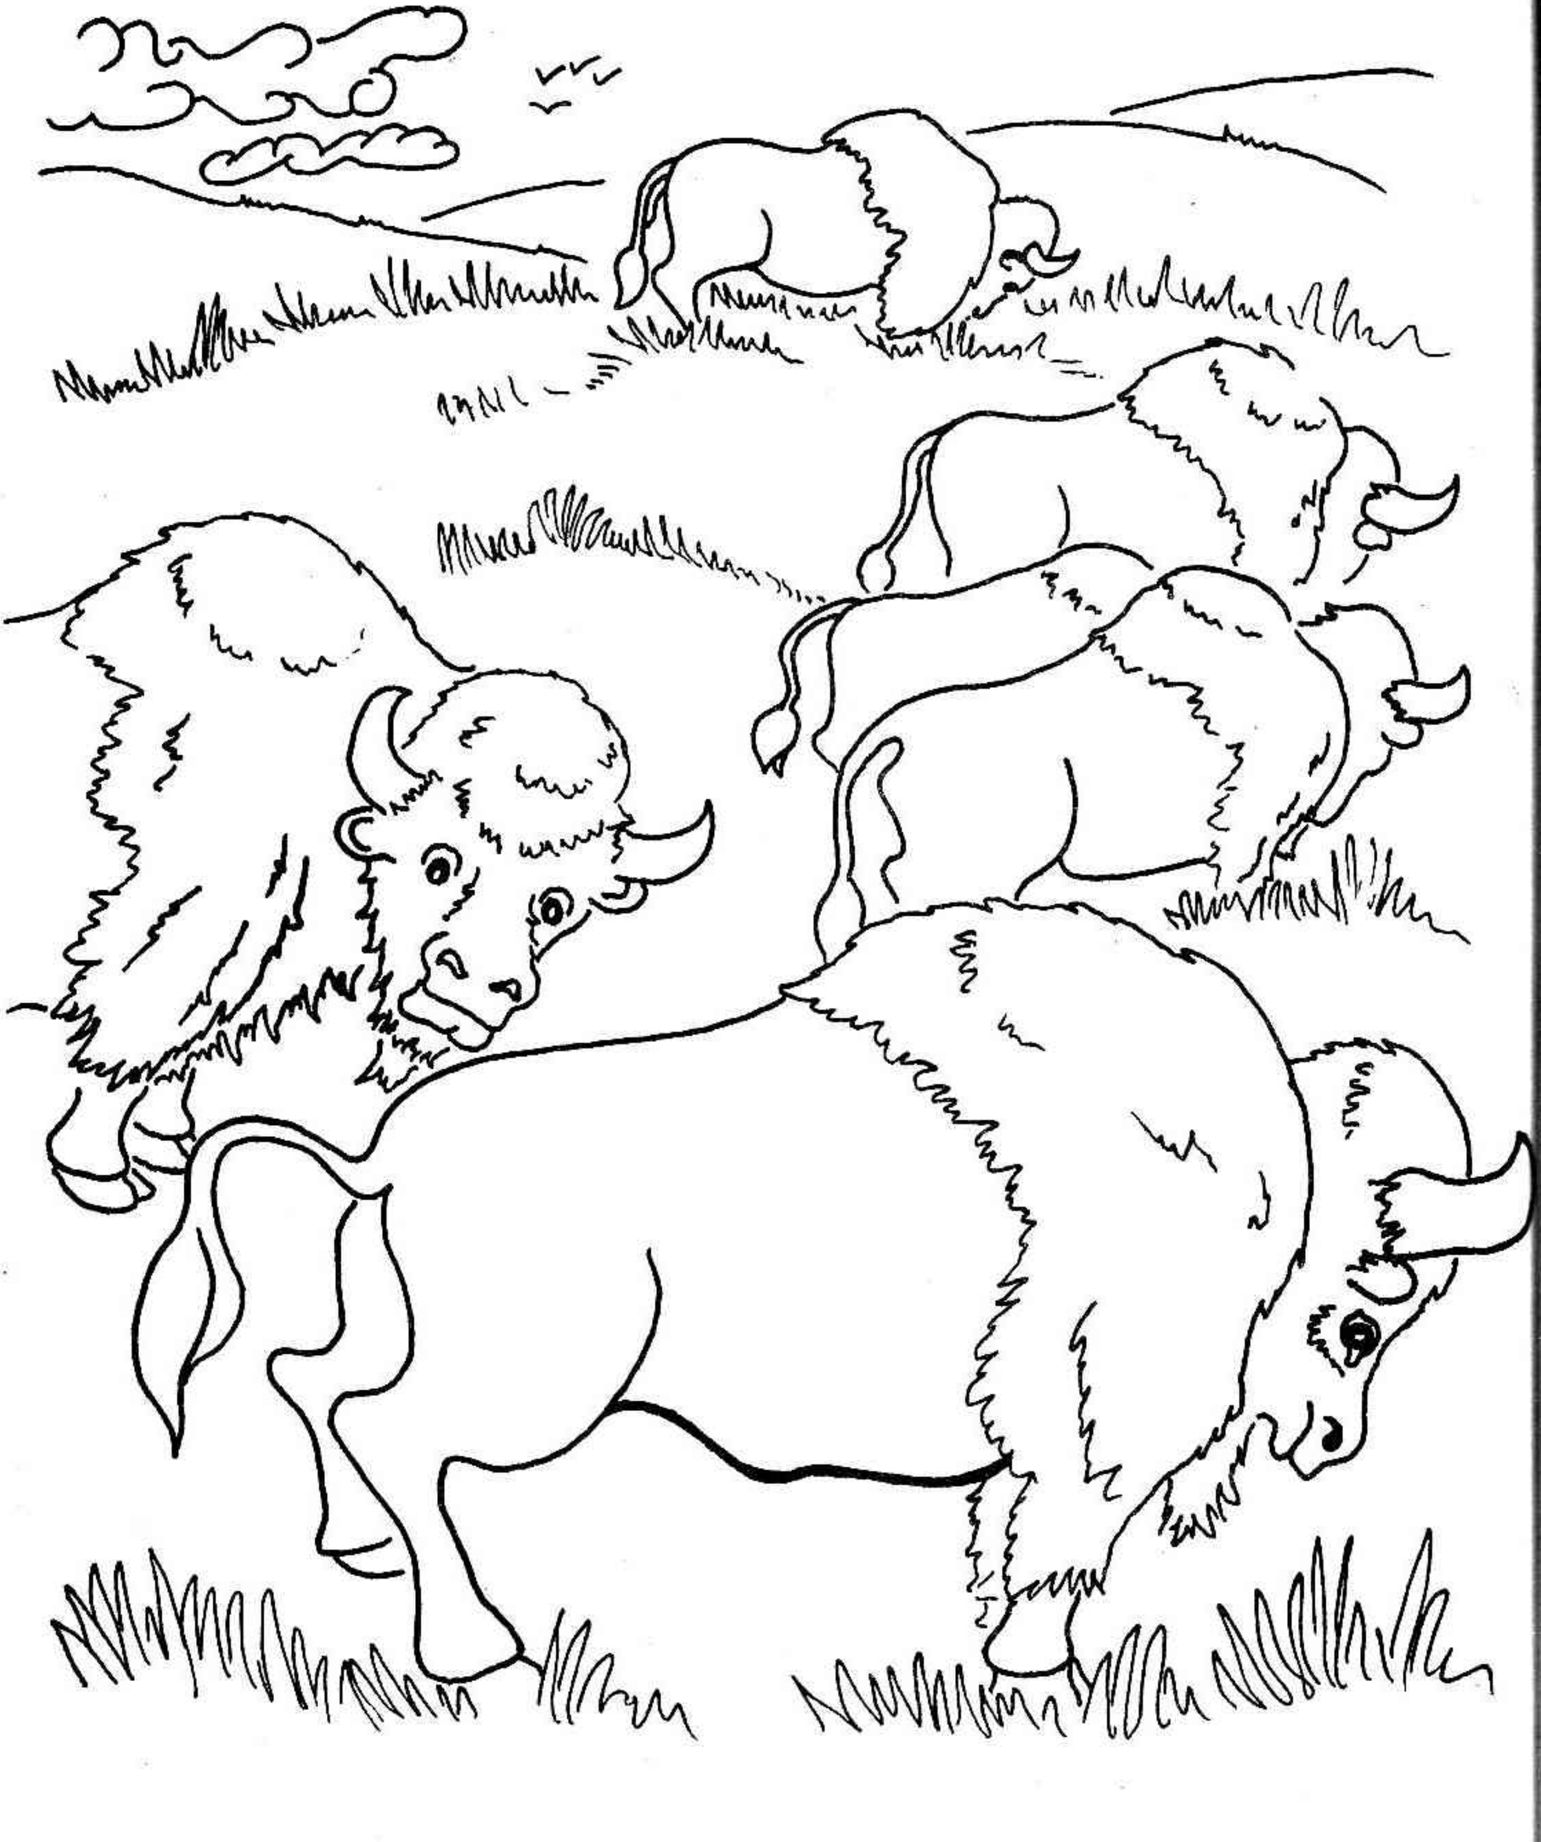

That night Little Bear wondered when his father and the other hunters would return.

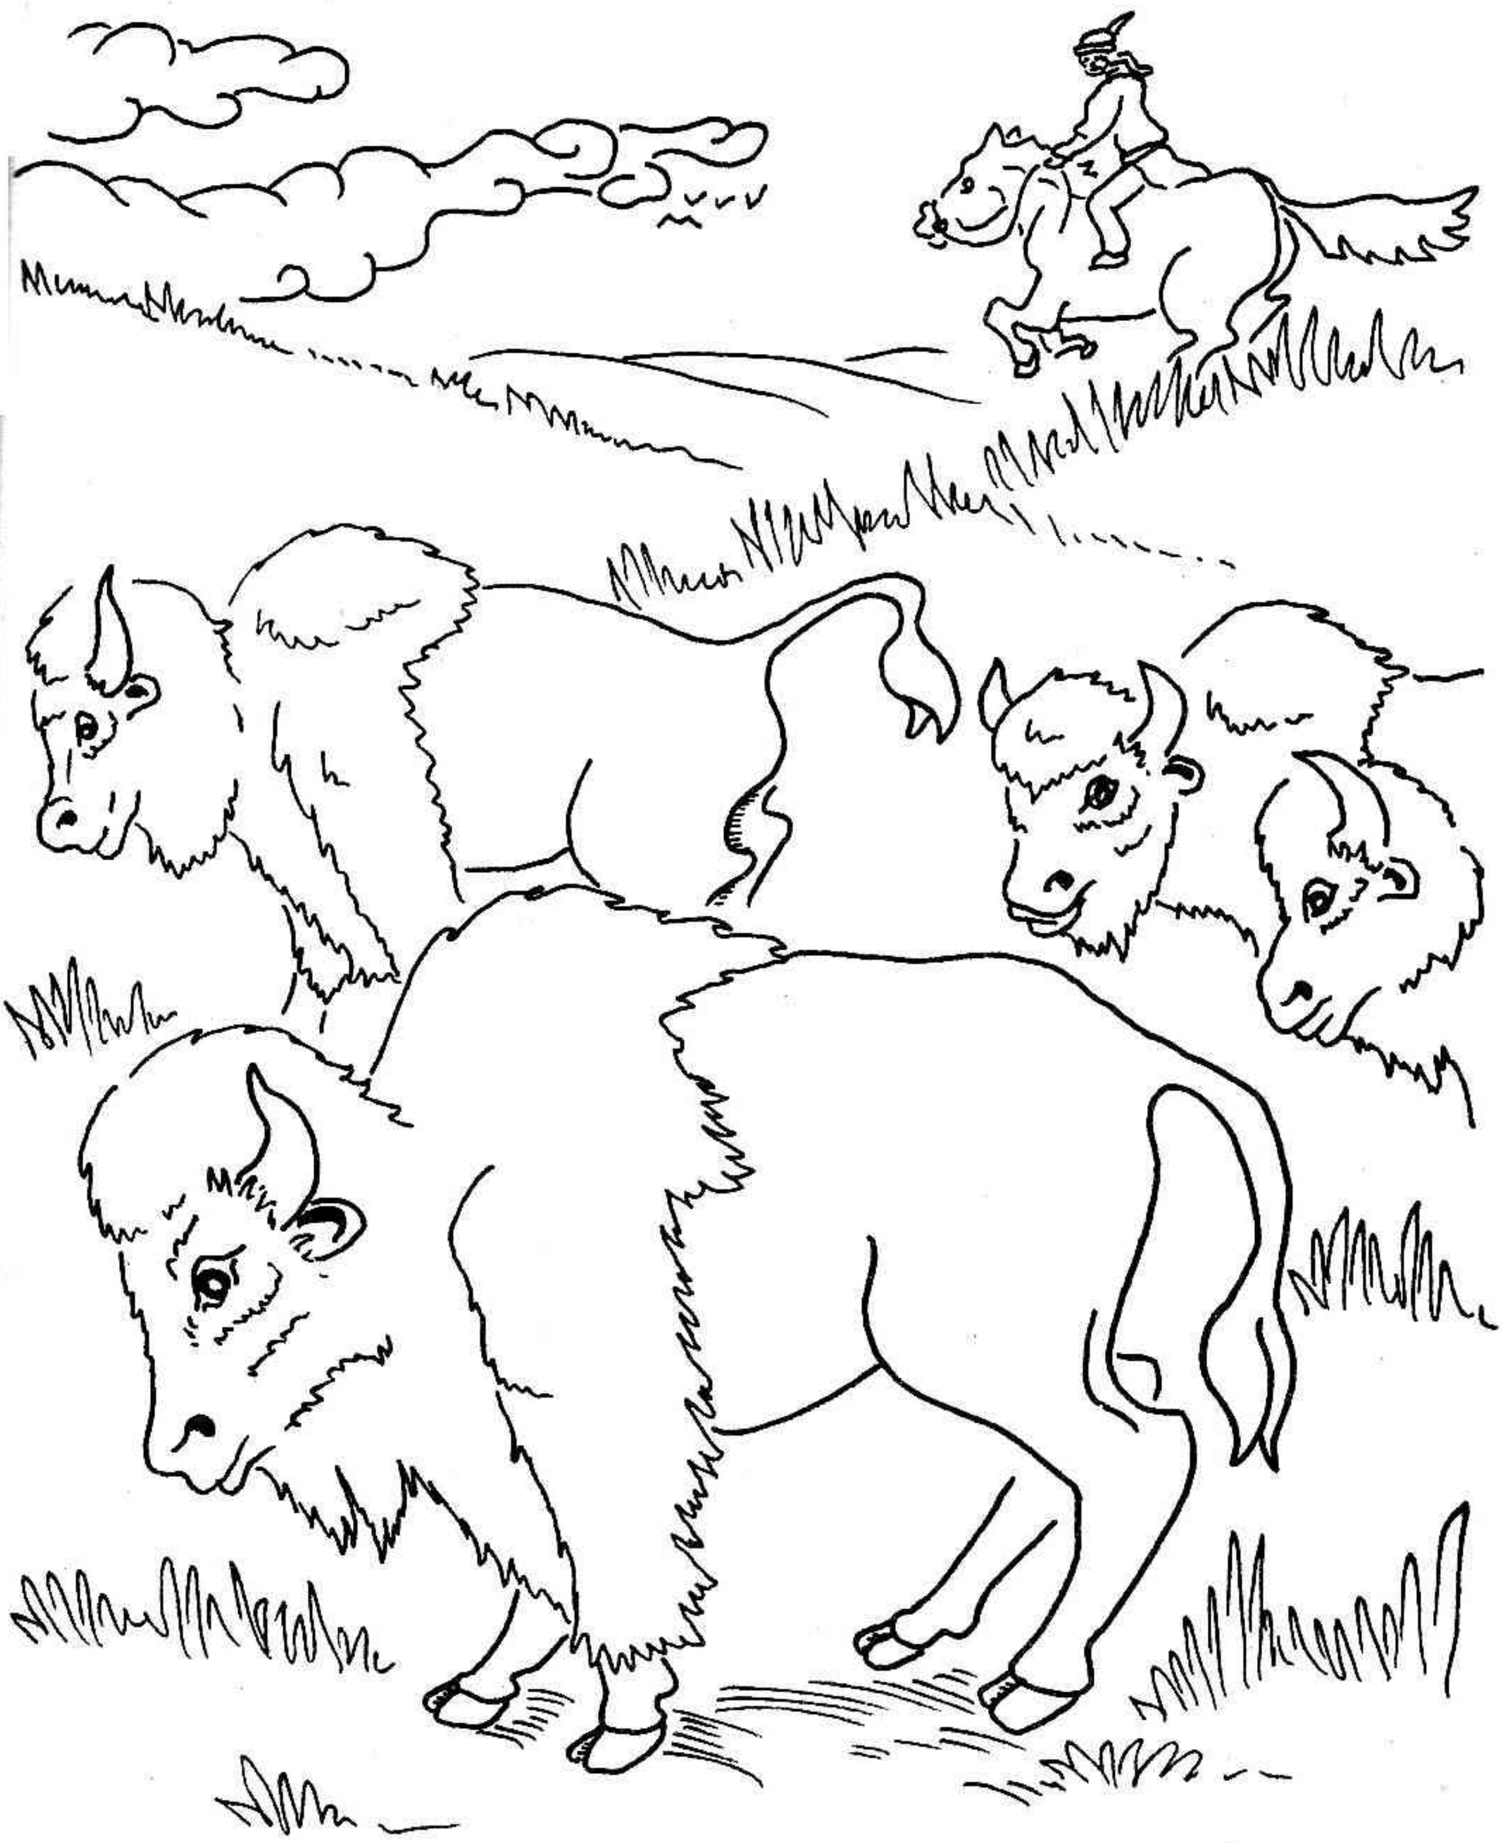

Get the brave to the buffalo.

The next morning the boys were surprised to see a buffalo by their camp.

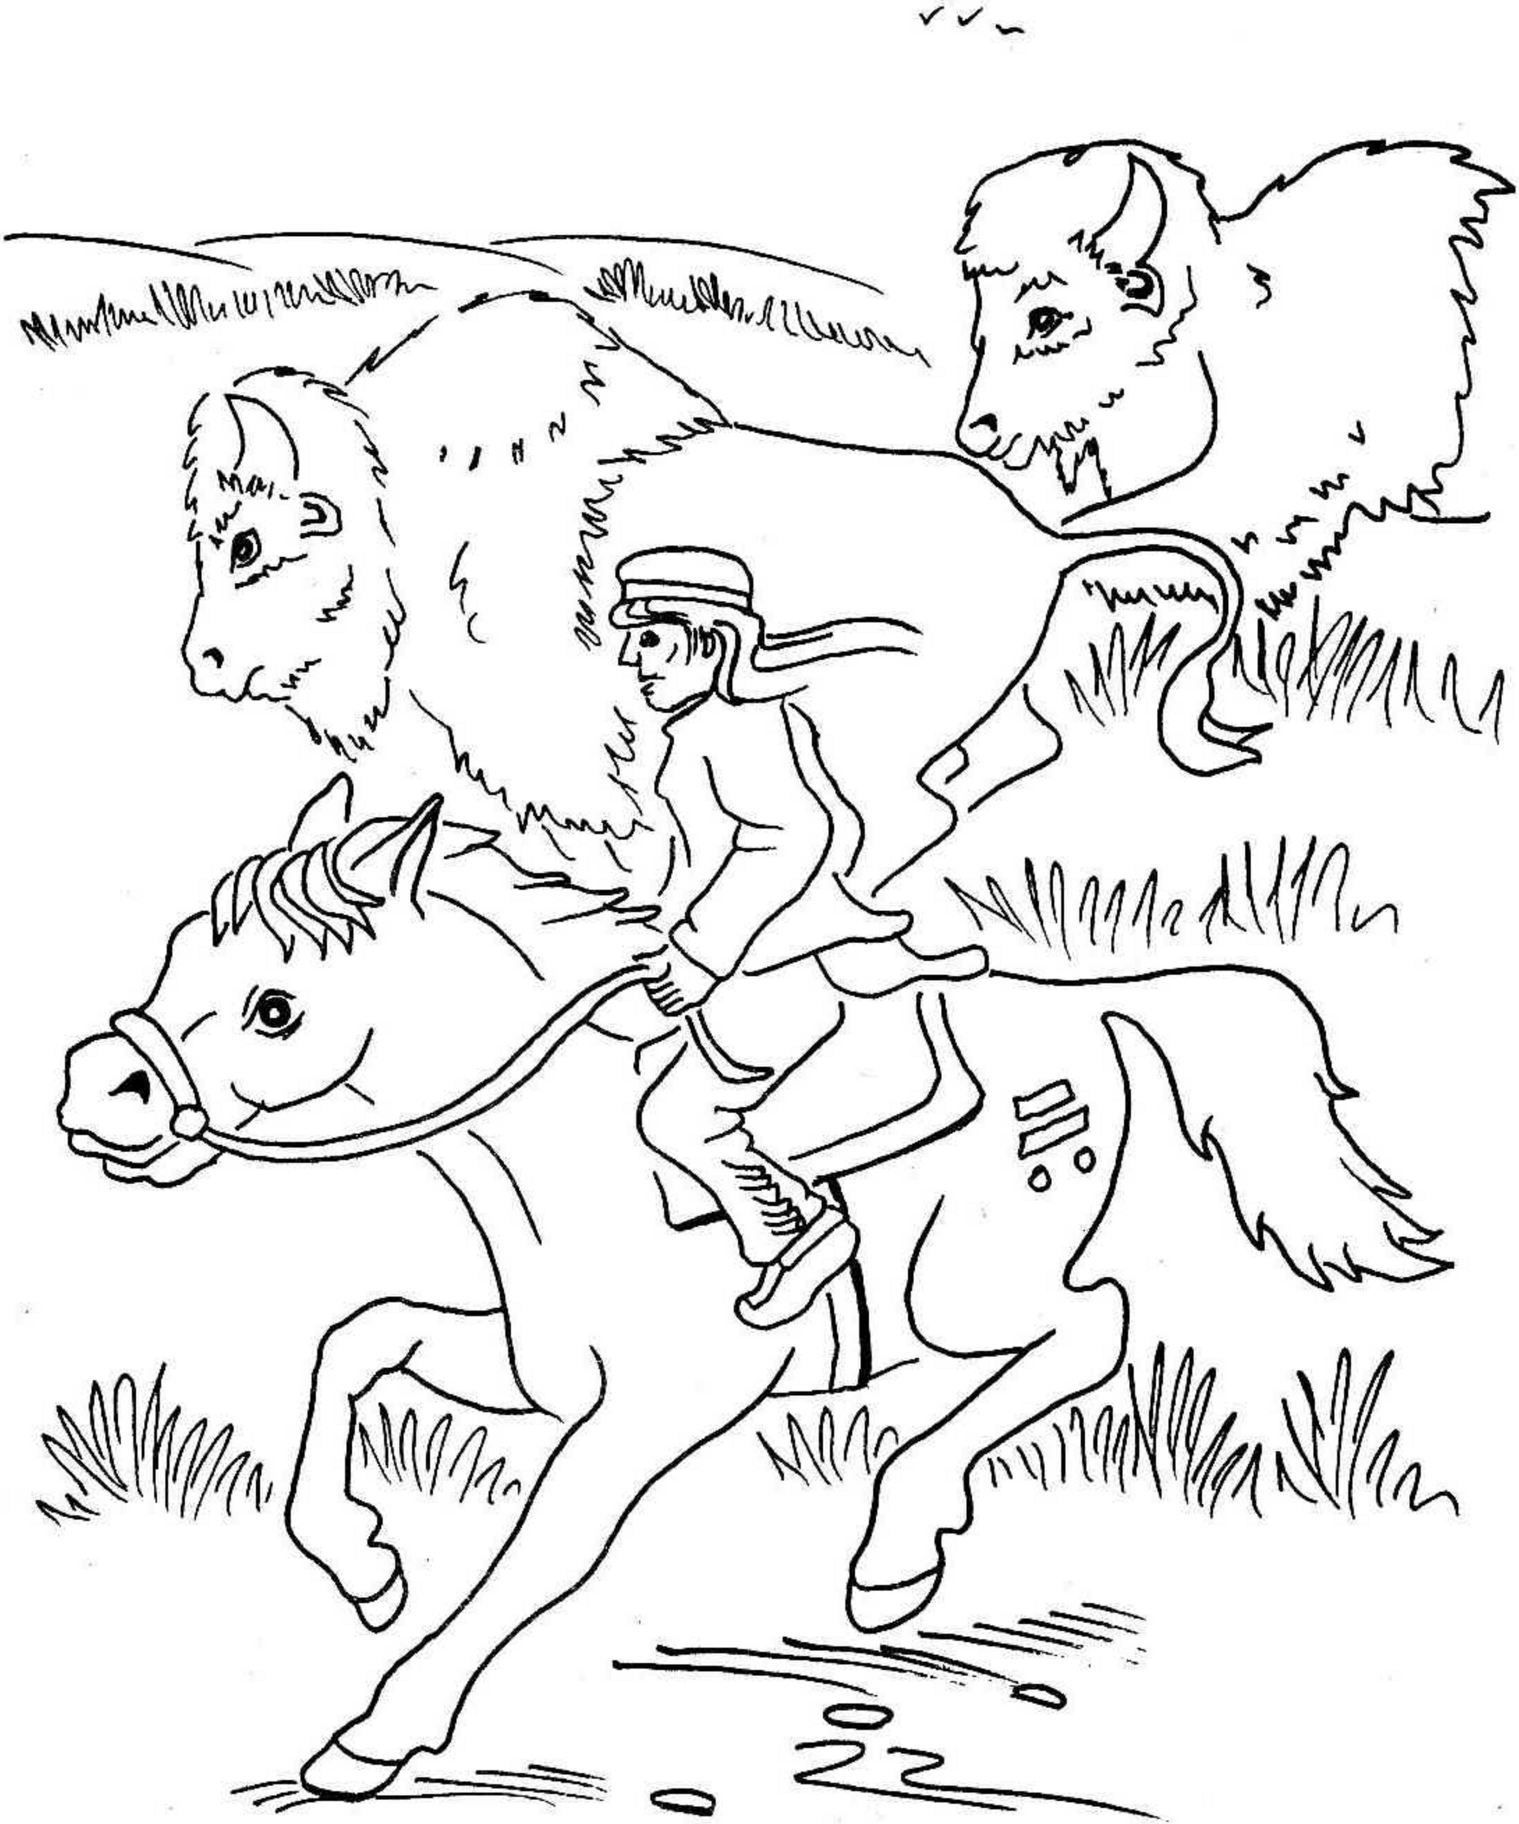

The whole herd was just outside the village.

Little Bear must find the hunting party and tell them about the herd.

Little Bear tells his father the good news about finding the buffalo.

There will be plenty of food for winter.

There was a great celebration in the village.

The medicine man gave thanks for their good fortune.

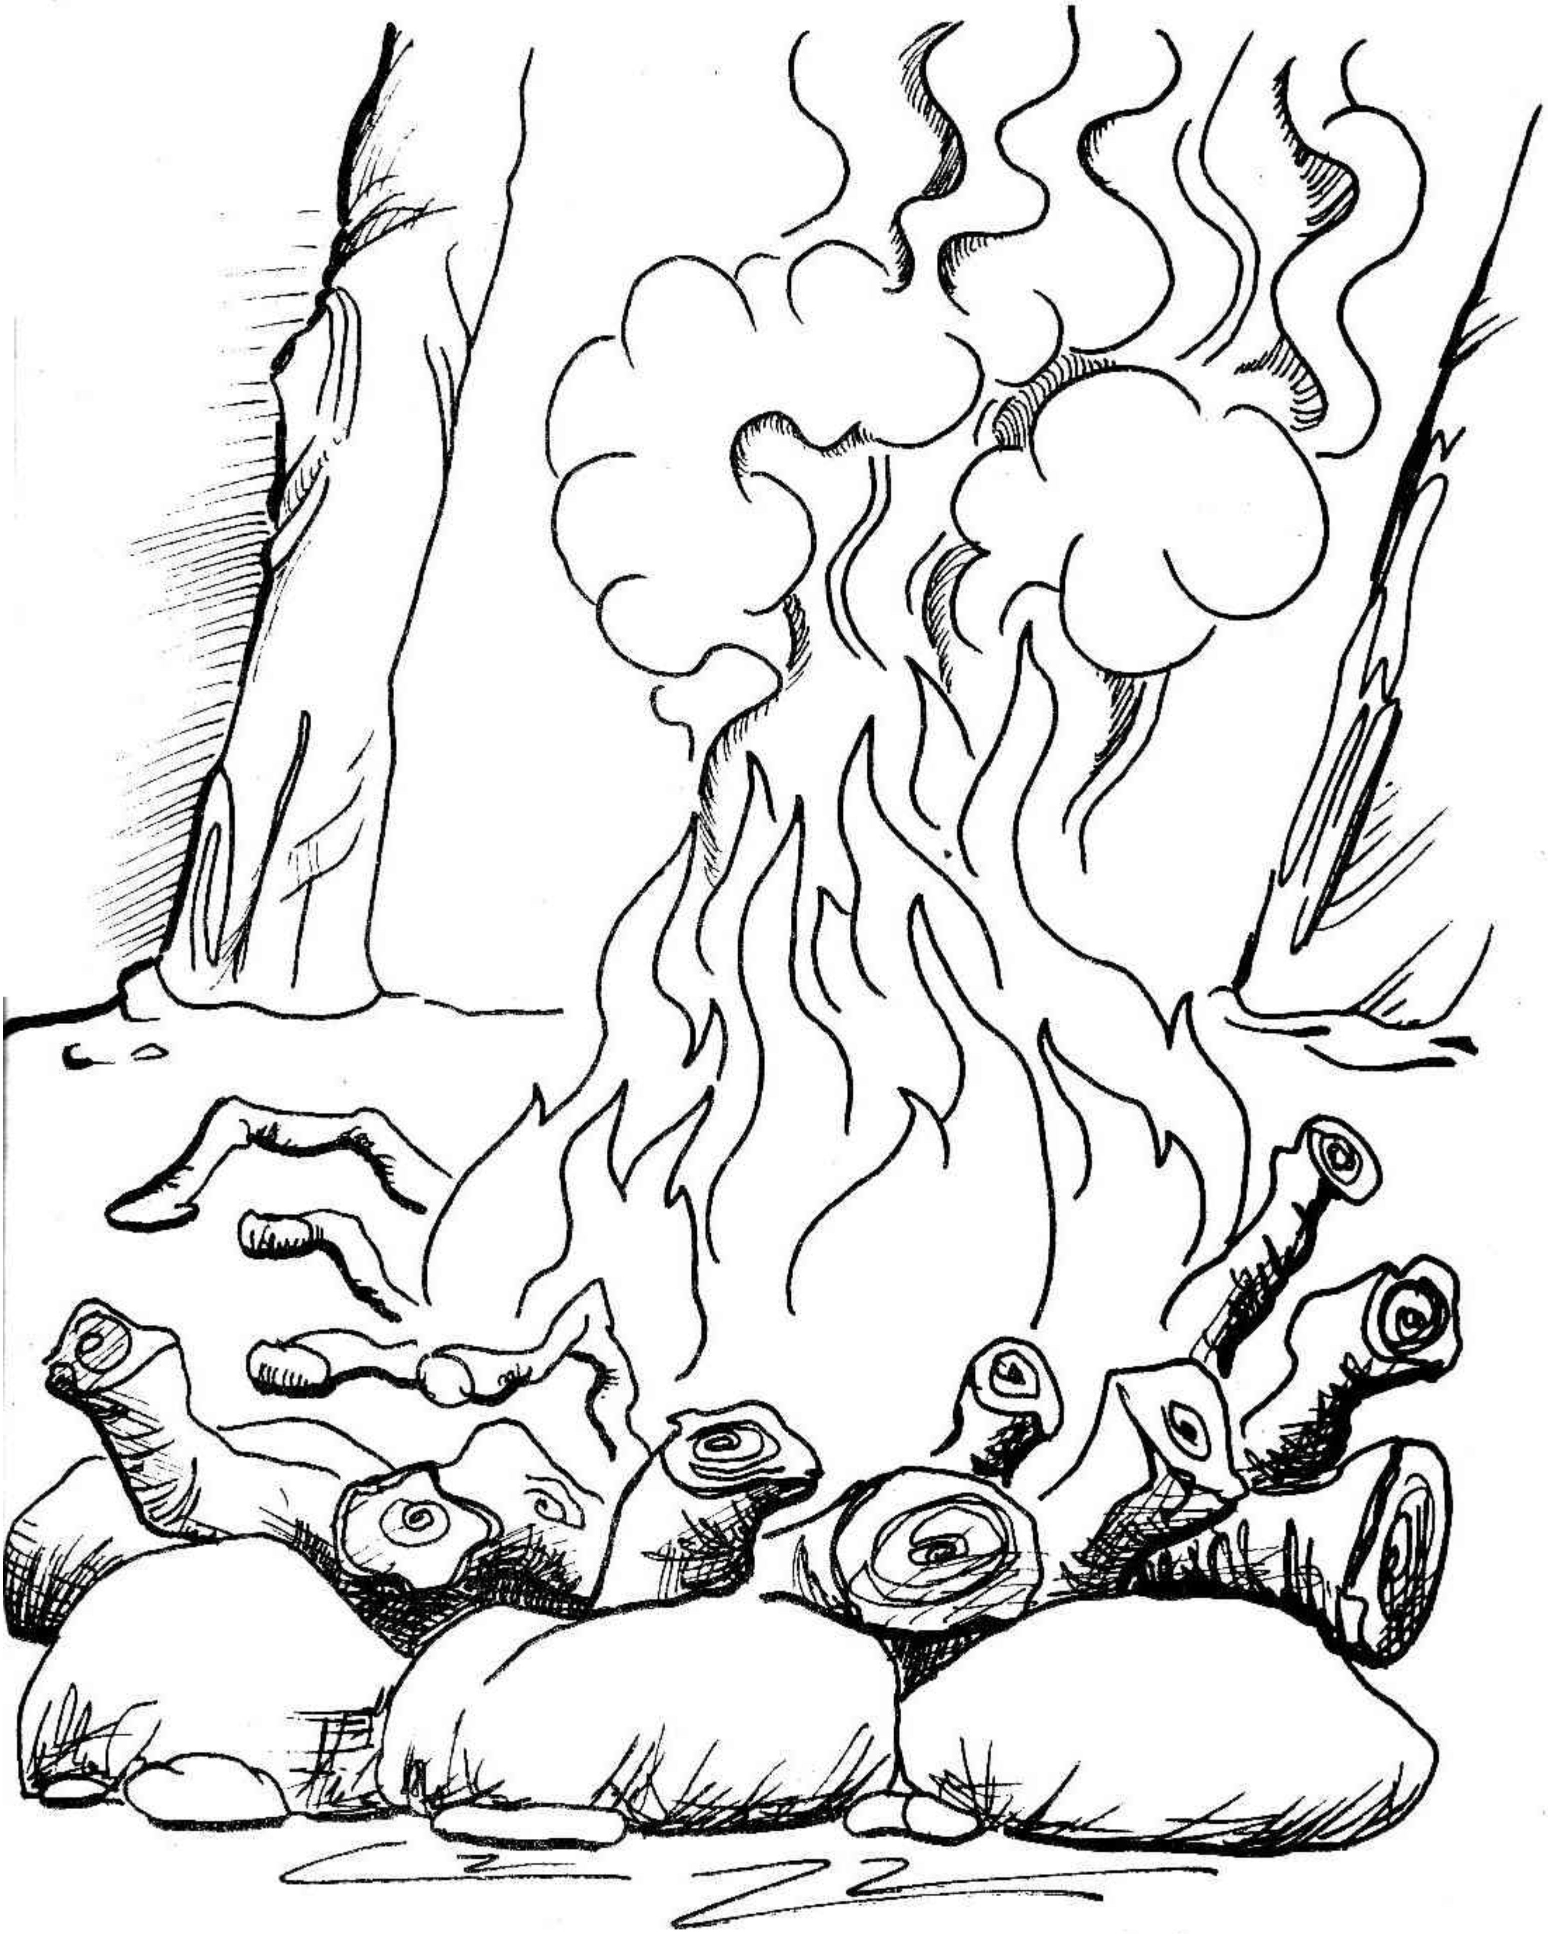

Get the Medicine Man to the campfire.

The chief thanked Little Bear and Gray Cloud for helping to find the buffalo.

Snow is falling; winter has arrived.

A fire inside the tepee provided heat.

Robes were made from the buffalo hides.

The robe kept Little Bear warm.

The tribe's tepees were also made from buffalo hide

Winter was a fun time to play.

Sliding downhill was lots of fun.

This beaver had been very busy.

The otter just wanted to play.

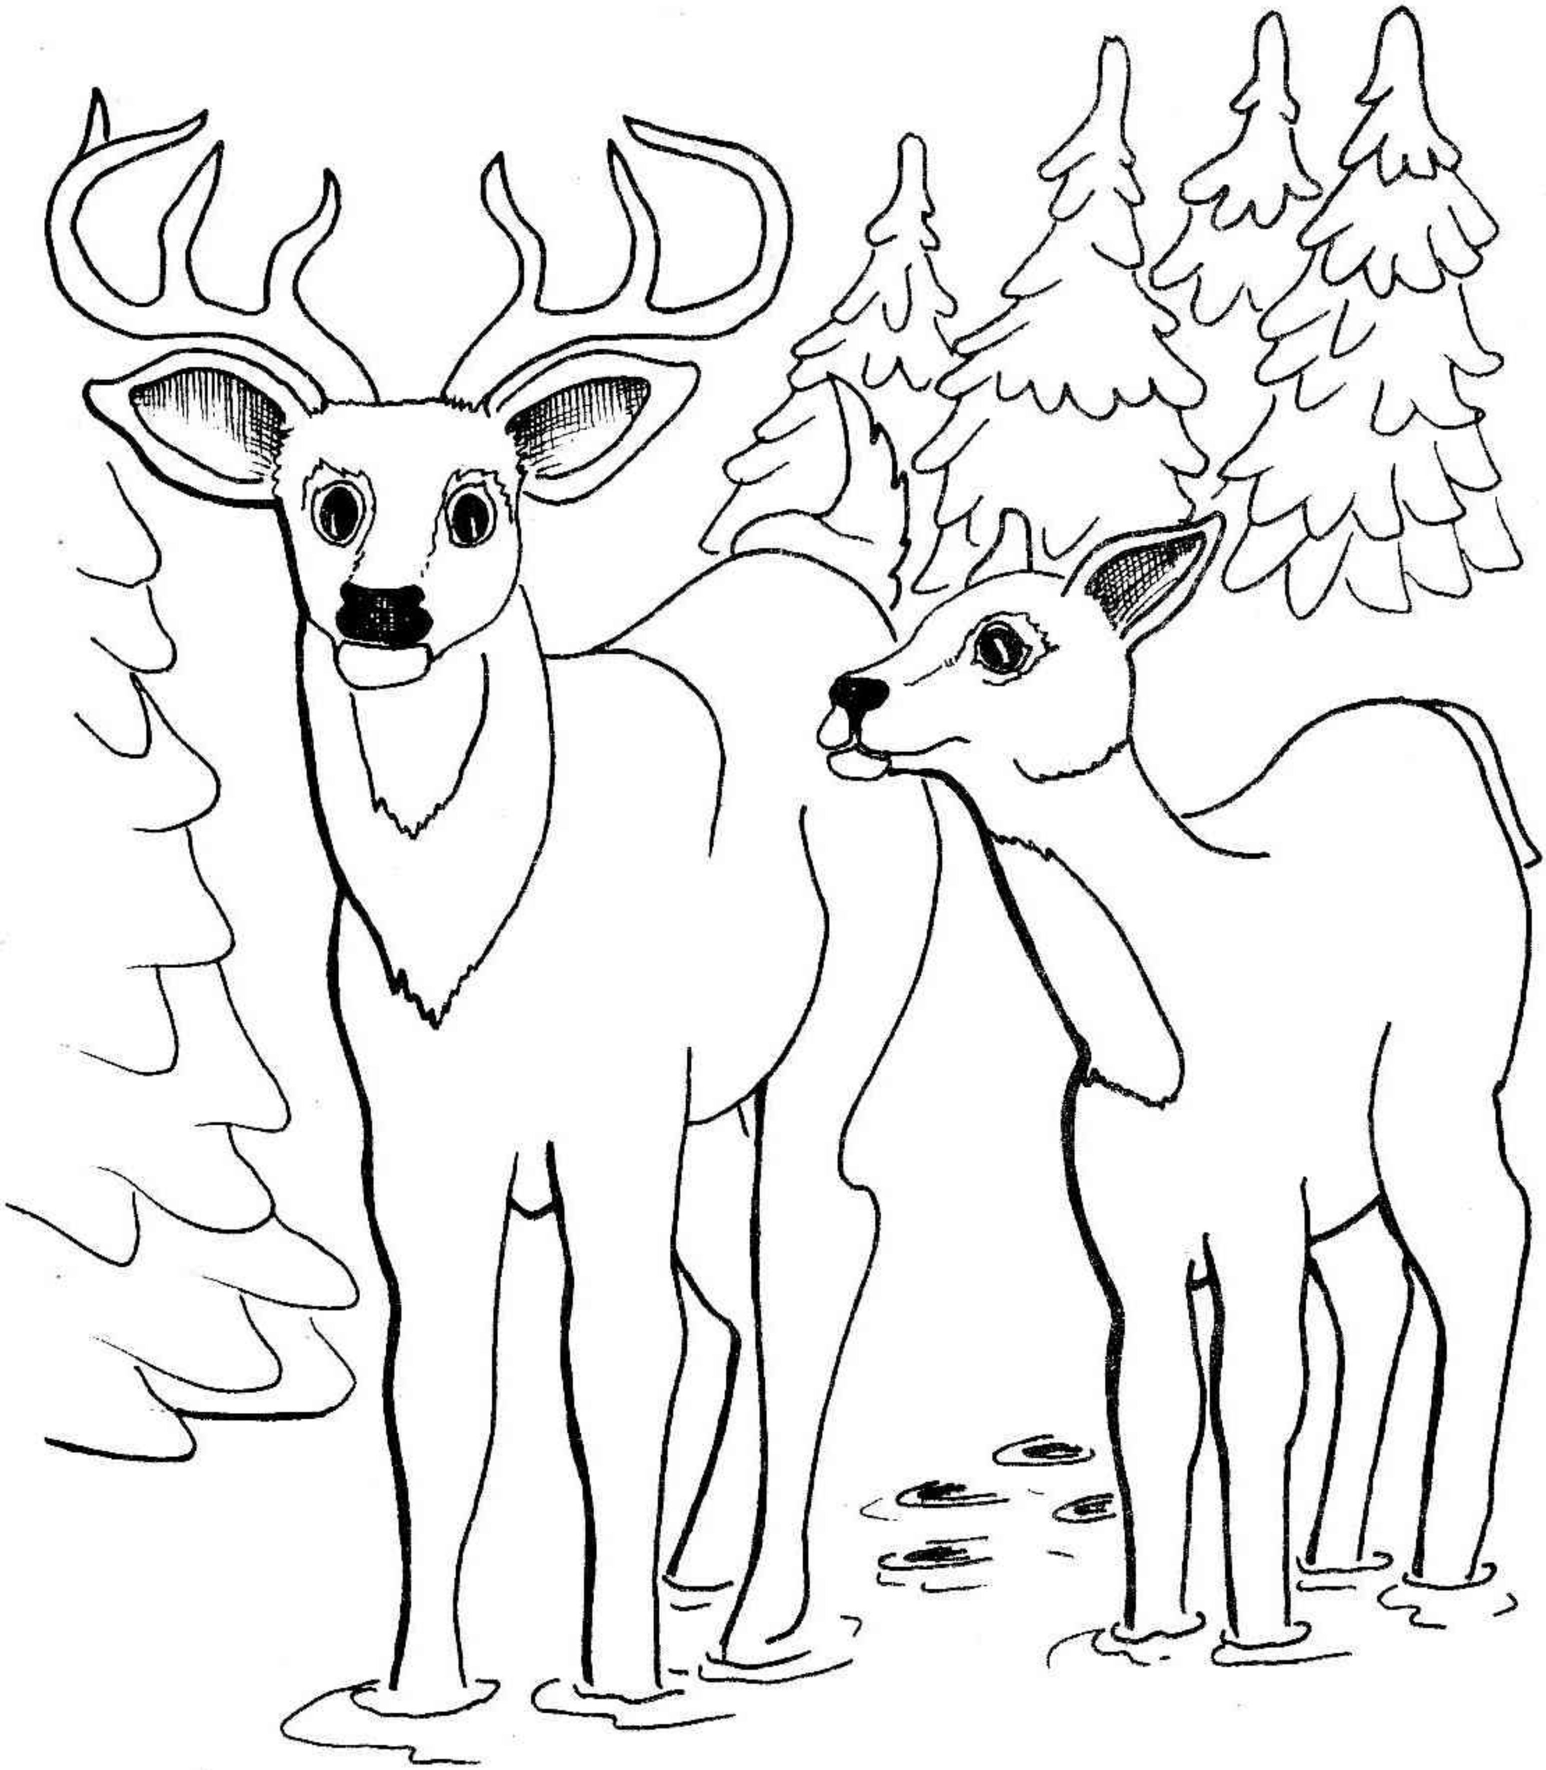

The rabbit was hard to see in the snow.

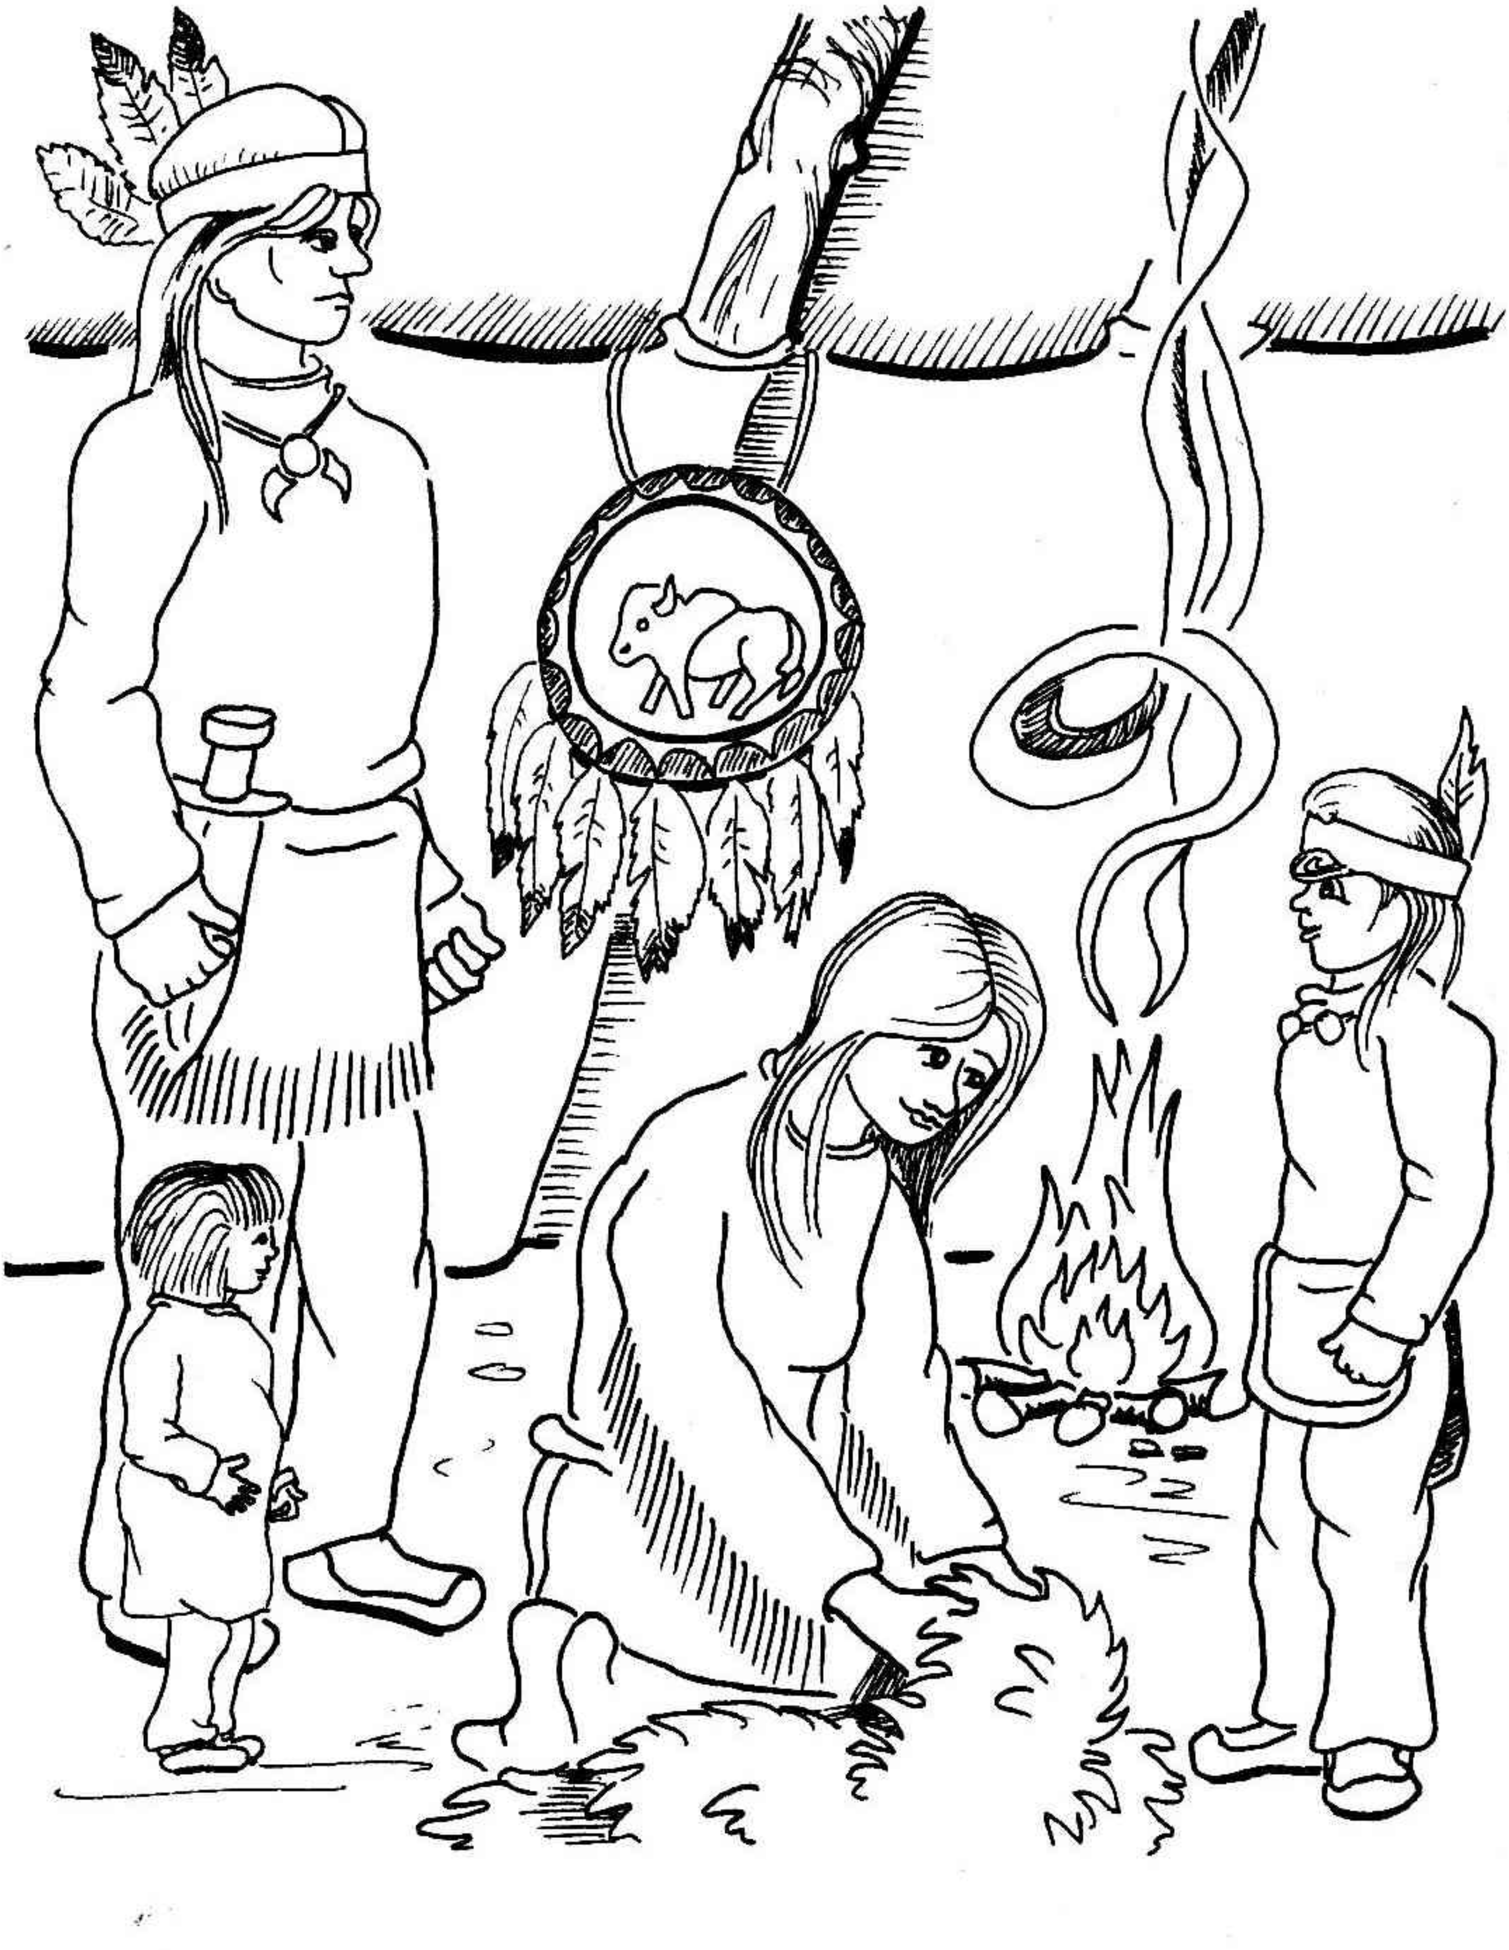

Just like the tribe had done,
the squirrel put away food for winter.

Little Bear and Gray Cloud followed some tracks in the snow.

They came upon some deer.
Little Bear loved all the animals.

Most of all, Little Bear loved his home and family.

Help Little Bear get home.

US $3.95

ISBN 1-885920-18-0

7 95604 92032 7

Pyramid PUBLISHING

Made In USA